Athletes From Antipodes Here For Empire Meet

Party of Thirty Arrives on R.M.M.S. Aorangi, Bound for Meet in Hamilton; Scullers, Swimmers, Bowlers, Boxers and Track and Field Men From Australia and New Zealand.

Thirty bronzed athletes from the Antipodes passed through Victoria this morning on board the Canadian-Australian motorliner Aorangi en route to the British Empire games in Hamilton, Ont., next month. Twenty-two New Zealanders and eight Australians were in the party, which also included coaches and managers. The teams will leave Vancouver tomorrow night, spend Sunday at Banff and then proceed direct to Hamilton, where they will have three weeks' practice before the Empire meet gets under way August 7.

The entire party has no time in getting ashore this morning and many of the men soon got rid of the effects of their three-week voyage at the Crystal Gardens. Others spent their time shopping and seeing the sights.

Twelve cricketers, eight runners, five swimmers, four bowlers and one boxer were included in the two teams, which are managed by R. J. Hobbs of Christchurch and H. B. Weir of Melbourne. Many national champions are in the squad and both managers are pleased with the personnel of the teams and the condition of their men after several weeks at sea. The party had taken advantage of the perfect weather during the voyage and were able to keep in shape with gym work and calisthenics.

A certain amount of running was also done on the boat deck, while the swimmers were able to lather up at Biva and Honolulu.

OLYMPIC CHAMPION

Heading the party was "Bob" Pearce of Sydney, Olympic sculling champion, who is expected by his mates to win the double sculls from Jack Gossett and For Wright when they meet over the mile and one-quarter route on Lake Ontario next month. Pearce is accompanied by his father, H. R. Pearce, who once held the professional sculling championship of the world. The Olympic titleholder is in the pink of condition and is said to be considerably improved over a recent Amsterdam race.

UNITY OF DOMINION STRESSED

Hon. A. Dunning Points to Friendly Relations of Provinces and Dominion

Federal Finance Minister Given Warm Welcome at Nanaimo Meeting To-day

Special to The Times
Nanaimo, July 17.—Hon. C. A. Dunning, Federal Minister of Finance, this afternoon addressed a capacity audience at the Bijou Theatre here, giving a review of his first budget and the results expected in improved Empire trade. The audience included many large delegations from all parts of Vancouver Island.

Others on the platform were C. H. O'Halloran, the Liberal candidate in Nanaimo riding; Senator J. H. King; George S. Pearson, M.P.P.; Gordon Sloan, and Mrs. Paul Smith of Vancouver. William Melor, president of the Nanaimo Liberal Association, was chairman.

It was the Finance Minister's first address of the present campaign in British Columbia. He was greeted by the theatre from the Vancouver boat and the audience rose on its feet to tender him a warm and enthusiastic welcome as he entered.

In his address, Mr. Dunning stated the national mortgage amounted to $2,194,000,000, most of which was the result of the Great War. The country was required to pay forty cents out of each dollar of national revenue to pay for debt services, yet the masterly management of the national finances by the late Hon. James A. Robb had resulted in a reduction of the debt of Canada by $250,000,000 during the Liberal administration, which had established the best record in the world during its last five years of office.

Discussing the establishment of old age pensions, which now are paid to 42,000 elderly persons, Mr. Dunning stated that the Conservative majority (Concluded on Page 14)

New Candidate In Field For Federal Seat Here

W. Brasier, James Island, Announces He Will Be Free Trade Advocate

First Time Three-cornered Dominion Fight Here Since 1917

Unexpected test and excitement to the political campaign in Victoria was added to-day with the announcement by W. Brasier, worker at James Island, that he would run as a United Empire candidate in opposition to Stuart Henderson, Liberal, and D. B. Plunkett, Conservative.

H. E. A. Courtney, returning officer for the riding, this morning received a request from Mr. Brasier for nomination papers which were forwarded to the prospective candidate.

In conversation with The Daily Times over the long distance telephone, Mr. Brasier confirmed the news that he would run.

COACH LINES MAY BE TAKEN OVER BY C.P.R.

Announcement of Transfer of Transportation System Expected Shortly

Lines Developed By J. H. S. Matson and Associates One of Largest in West

It is understood that negotiations are nearing completion for the sale of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Limited to the Canadian Pacific Railway. Auditors for the railway company are now engaged in an examination of the books of the coach lines and an official statement announcing the transfer of control is expected to be made shortly.

The Vancouver Island Coach Lines Limited, which began in a modest way, to-day operates sixty coaches on twenty routes, providing transportation between all points on the island which are served by possible highways. An efficient staff has been developed and transportation experts from other centres have stated that the island system is unequaled anywhere in service, equipment and personnel.

The Vancouver Island Coach Lines system, now one of the largest transportation systems of its kind in western Canada, began with the purchase of a number of bus and jitney services in Saanich by J. H. S. Matson in 1920.

With characteristic energy and enterprise, Mr. Matson organized a company and initiated an ambitious programme of extensions until eventually he had provided transportation services for practically every accessible community on the island. Recently his company acquired the Gray Line Sightseeing and Taxi business.

Builders, Business Men and Realtors Buck Sections of Proposed By-law

Plumbers Want to Take Everything Is Claim of Speakers at Parley

Builders, real estate men and business interests fought with master and journeyman plumbers before the works committee of the city council yesterday afternoon over the new plumbing by-law proposed by the council.

Apparently the most contentious clause in the new regulation is one which deals with the replacing of broken fixtures, tanks, pipes and waste-pipes. While the by-law provides that any person, firm or corporation may do this replacement work, it was claimed by business and building interests that installations should also be allowed.

BRITISH M.P. RUNS AWAY WITH MACE

Labour Member Creates Scene When Fellow Laborite Is Suspended

Stopped Before He Leaves Chamber and Mace Is Recovered

Canadian Press
London, July 17.—The House of Commons was thrown into excitement this afternoon when A. Fenner Brockway, Labor member, in the middle of the question period insisted on delivering a speech on India and Premier MacDonald moved his suspension for disobeying the chair.

After a division, when the tellers were lined up at the table to give the result, one of them, a Laborite, John Beckett, scandalized the chamber by seizing the mace, which is the House's emblem of authority, and running down the floor with it.

A messenger caught him at the bar of the House and the sergeant-at-arms recovered the mace amid a scene of great excitement.

The members, steeped in traditions of the sacredness of the Commons' prestige and dignity, were horrified at the incident and loud protests came from both sides of the chamber.

TWO SUSPENDED
Beckett's suspension also was moved by Premier MacDonald and carried 324 to 4. Fenner Brockway's suspension previously had been declared carried. He and Beckett left the House together.

Members who sat near Beckett as he snatched the mace reported him to the chair as shouting, "Mr. Speaker, it's a disgrace," referring apparently to his Labor colleague's suspension.

When the speaker arose to announce Beckett's withdrawal from the House there were cries of "He's run away" from the Conservative benches.

TO RETURN NEXT WEEK
Under standing orders of the House of Commons the suspensions of Brockway and Beckett will continue until the fifth day, neither will be able to sit again until next Thursday.

To-day's suspensions were the first during the present Parliament.

MEET DEATH IN EXPLOSION

Thirteen Escape When Accident Occurs in San Francisco Waterworks Pit

Inspection of Tunnel Yesterday Afternoon Showed No Traces of Gas

Camp Mitchell, Cal., July 17.—A gas explosion killed an entire shift of twelve men in a tunnel of the Hetch-Hetchy project, San Francisco's municipal water area, early to-day. The explosion took place in the east drift of the tunnel between 800 and 1,200 feet underground. The main shaft goes to a depth of 817 feet.

Two bodies recovered were found near the mouth of the east drift, which goes back 1,200 feet. Thirteen men in the west drift, which goes back 1,500 feet, at the time of the explosion were brought to the surface badly shaken up and some were gasped, though not seriously injured.

The shaft, known as the Mitchell Ravine shaft, is located in the Alameda County foothills. Inspector Rankin said he had been in the new "arpenine" workings at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and there were no traces of gas at that time, although usually signs are none.

Premier Speaks In Great Lakes Towns

Great Meeting Addressed By Federal Prime Minister in Kenora, Ont., Yesterday Evening, Will Be Followed To-night By Speech in Sault Ste. Marie

Kenora, Ont., July 17.—Premier King, after addressing a great audience here yesterday evening, to-day was on his way to Sault Ste. Marie, where to-night the next address of his federal election campaign tour will be delivered.

At his first meeting in Ontario since he returned from his tour to the British Columbia coast, Mr. King, when he arrived at the theatre here yesterday evening, found it crowded to its utmost capacity and an overflow of electors on the sidewalk.

The Premier, who was given a most enthusiastic welcome and a prolonged ovation after his address, made an election prediction, in which he said there was no doubt the Liberals would make substantial gains in the eastern provinces and Ontario. In the three prairie provinces, Mr. Bennett would gain no seats. In British Columbia there would probably be substantial gains for the Liberals.

Two Victoria Riflemen Help Canadian Team Win Trophy At Empire Meet

Capt. W. G. Holland and Sergt. J. H. Regan Members of Squad Which, With Lead of Fifty-one Points, Brings Mackinnon Cup to This Country From Bisley.

Canadian Press
Bisley Camp, Eng., July 17.—Canada won the Mackinnon Challenge Cup at the ranges here this afternoon. The victory, atoning for the Dominion's loss of the Kolapore Cup Tuesday, was Canada's seventh victory in this great team shoot of the annual Empire rifle meet, here since the cup was first offered in 1891. Two Victoria marksmen, Capt. W. G. Holland and Sergt. J. H. Regan, were included in the team.

Canada won by the comfortable margin of 51 points, the team's score being 1,076. Rhodesia was second with 1,025, Scotland third with 1,021, and England, winner of the cup in 1929, fourth, with 1,020.

India was fifth with 1,019, Ireland sixth with 1,018, and Wales seventh with 999.

FOREMAN LED
Captain J. R. Foreman of Hamilton was high man in the Canadian team with a perfect fifty at the first distance and forty-seven at the long 1,000-yard range, making ninety-seven out of 100.

Lieut. J. Bowen of Edmonton, the only other Canadian scoring a highest possible, added forty-six at 1,000 yards to his earlier fifty for a ninety-six. Lieut. Desmond Burke of Ottawa was third, with forty-eight and forty-seven, totaling ninety-five. The other Canadians had ninety or lower.

A light freshening breeze and bright sunshine favored the marksmen to-day. The Canadian team took no chances in turning the tables to-day. Tuesday they had lost the Kolapore Cup to England by only seven points. To-day they won the Mackinnon Cup by one of the largest margins recorded in the history of the shoot.

The competing teams were twelve men each, firing at two ranges, 500 and 1,000 yards. Each man fired ten shots at each distance.

OTTAWA MAN ASKS GOVERNOR TO FIND HIM A CONSTITUENCY

By GEORGE HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Correspondent
Ottawa, July 17.—Candidates and would-be candidates multiply in the federal election contest. Independent this or independent that, they come forward in numbers. Many will never reach actual nomination. Some no doubt, will withdraw after official nomination day, next Monday. But odd as some of the candidatures are, there is perhaps none to equal one who has dogged officials here for days and declares he even submitted his case to the Governor-General, although he admits without result.

He wants a constituency. In a letter to hand, he describes how he wrote to the Governor-General about a seat "in the deputy chamber of the Federal Parliament."

"I want to know from you," he wrote, "if there are any vacant counties anywhere in Canada." He wanted to represent one on his policy of "development of budding industries."

He backed up his letter with personal application for a constituency. To humor him he was told he would be notified if there was a constituency left.

But he will remain among the politically unemployed.

THREE ALLIES BLAMED FOR WORLD MISERY

Protection, Militarism, Capitalism, Held Responsible For Unemployment

Production For Social Service, Not Profit, Urged at Co-operative Congress

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 17.—General prosperity is dependent on freedom of exchange wealth, and unemployment and economic distress cannot be remedied by impediments to exchange, according to W. C. Good of Paris, whose presidential address to the annual Congress of the Co-operative Union of Canada was read at the opening session of the congress to-day. Mr. Good was absent through illness.

General prosperity is also dependent on freedom to produce wealth, he added, in outlining the co-operative movement's solution of economic depression throughout the world.

The co-operative movement stands not only for freedom of exchange between as well as within nations, Mr. Good said, but also stands for freedom of production, in its two-fold and mutually harmonizing aspects of equality of opportunity and equity of remuneration.

FOR SOCIAL SERVICE, NOT PROFIT
"In fact," he continued, "it goes on record quite definitely that industry shall be for social service and not for private profit, and is steadily working out the application of this idea in our economic life. The opposing idea embodied in the motto of 'everyone for himself' has been conspicuous, and no doubt useful, in the lower organized world. Among men it is, however, now out of date; and the system of capitalism, which is its recent concrete expression in the field of human industry, is breaking down by reason of its own inherent weakness."

In the opinion of Mr. Good, economic distress, with its unemployment, involving such unnecessary misery, demoralization and death, is due "to the outworking of those plausible but fallacious ideas represented in that unholy alliance of protectionism, militarism and capitalism." "All of these deny the fundamental basis of civilization itself," he continued, "namely, the interdependence of men and of nations."

Against them the co-operative movement sets itself as adamant. Reason as well as religion supports the co-operative motto, upon whose application civilization depends.

Elaborating on the movement's solution of economic depression, Mr. Good said freedom to produce wealth meant, in the first place, the world's resources, which constitute the invitation and the opportunity for useful labor, should be accessible to all on equal terms, with equal opportunities for all, special privileges for none. There would be no cornering of natural resources, and while peaceable possession must be guaranteed to the worker so that he may reap the fruits of his toil it must be on terms which are just to all and which will enable no one to lay his fellowmen under tribute.

Man Arrested In Calgary Faces Three Charges

Calgary, July 17.—After one of the biggest police hunts ever staged in western Canada, Emil Joseph Martin, accountant, forty-one years of age, was taken into custody last night by Detective-Sergeant Joseph Carruthers and Detective Samuel J. Patterson of the Calgary city police.

During the last four or five months, he is alleged to have traveled throughout the western provinces and is alleged to have obtained money on the strength of claiming to be a narcotic officer of the Federal Government.

It is claimed his operations commenced in British Columbia and spread east. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police had put forth every effort to arrest him, and all detachments, as well as every police force in western Canada, were notified to arrest the man on sight.

At present he faces three charges of obtaining money under false pretences.

DEATH MOURNED IN QUEBEC

HON. J. E. CARON

Quebec, July 17.—Death removed a distinguished figure of Quebec yesterday, when Hon. J. E. Caron, former Minister of Agriculture and veteran member of the Quebec Legislature succumbed following an operation performed earlier in the day. He was sixty-four years old and had been a member of the legislature almost continuously since 1902 and from 1909 to 1929 was Minister of Agriculture with the exception of a short period in 1912-13, when he held the portfolio of Highways.

During the last four or five months, he is alleged to have traveled throughout the western provinces and is alleged to have obtained money on the strength of claiming to be a narcotic officer of the Federal Government.

It is claimed his operations commenced in British Columbia and spread east. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police had put forth every effort to arrest him, and all detachments, as well as every police force in western Canada, were notified to arrest the man on sight.

TWO THINGS THE TOWN MUST HAVE

The little prairie towns along the railway—there are two things they always have. One is the grain elevator. The other is the Imperial Oil branch station. Watch as your train goes through and you will see them—side by side.

They have to have both in the West. They must have an elevator to store their grain. And they must have oil and gasoline to help them sow and reap it, for the Western farmer runs his farm today with the efficiency of any other great industry.

Imperial Oil marched alongside the pioneer into the West. The farmer knows he can count on an Imperial Oil man to help him—anywhere, any time. And he knows that the gasoline and oil from Imperial tanks are the best he can get to do his job.

For fifty years Imperial Oil has been meeting new needs of transportation and industry.

Today its work is woven into the fabric of the country's progress—new efficiency for the farmer—caches for Arctic airmen—supply depots for the mines—service stations in every city and town—miles of tank cars—nine thousand men in its refineries, on its ships, in its laboratories, at its wells.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.

Imperial 3-Star and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

BRITISH HOUSE VOTE IS VICTORY FOR MACDONALD

Conservative Censure Motion Defeated; Premier Talks of Canadian Wheat

London, July 17.—The Labor Government yesterday evening safely weathered another of the crises by which it has been beset in a series of recent defeats by 212 votes to 241 a Conservative motion proposing safeguarding of home markets against "unfair foreign competition."

The motion, made by former Premier Stanley Baldwin, was regarded as a vote of censure.

Instead of a slender margin of two votes, by which the Laborites defeated during the finance bill debate last week, yesterday evening's ballot showed the government standing firmly with a majority of seventy-one, a margin so comfortable as to wear its face to proceed cautiously in developing further moves.

POSITION OF CANADA
During the debate, Premier MacDonald told the House the active campaign being conducted in the United Kingdom in favor of the use of home-grown agricultural products had "given rise to much awkwardness with Canada."

Mr. MacDonald said there had already been a campaign attacking Britain for its propaganda favoring consumption of home-grown products. These attacks were made on the ground that such propaganda was robbing the Canadian agricultural growers of their previous opportunities in the United Kingdom market.

The Prime Minister said that when the question arose of safeguarding the British farmers by a system of wheat quotas—calling for a certain portion of the home-grown cereal in all bakers' loaves—"the Canadian Government was not at all indifferent even at the stage when this was only a proposal, and had not been adopted by the government at all."

In the vote yesterday evening the Conservative members found themselves alone when they sought to have the House condemn the government. The Baldwin motion besides criticizing the administration for its lack of a safeguarding policy, sought to have the House express regret that the government had "arbitrarily excluded from consideration" the imposition of duties on foreign foodstuffs. The traditionally free trade Liberals voted with the government.

From the moment Right Hon. David Lloyd George, veteran leader of the Liberals, termed the Baldwin motion "the most extraordinary and despicable proposal of censure" he had ever heard, the motion was doomed. Mr. Lloyd George found "extraordinary" the fact that Mr. Baldwin reproached the government for not considering duties on foreign foodstuffs while Mr. Baldwin himself had refused to consider such taxes without reference to the people.

RECORD SET BY VANCOUVER TO MEXICO FLIGHT

San Diego, Cal., July 17.—Knocking nearly four hours off the border-to-border flight record, Col. Roscoe Turner landed at Agua Caliente, Mexico, at 4:14.25 yesterday afternoon, after a nonstop flight from Vancouver, B.C. Colonel Turner took off at 7 a.m. making his elapsed time 9:14.02.5. The previous record was set by Tim Rankin, Portland, Ore., some time ago. An average speed of 150 miles an hour was maintained and aside from being tired, Colonel Turner and his two crew members, reported none the worse. The flight was made in a monoplane of special design.

The arrival was timed by J. Allison Moore, chairman of the Board of Air Control here. William Van Dusen, National Aeronautical Association representative, stated the record would be sent to Washington.

CO-OPERATIVES HIT BY DEPRESSION IN PRICES AND WAGES

Concentration of Wealth in Hands of Few Deplored at Union's Conference

Canadian Press
Toronto, July 16.—Constricted purchasing power in both the rural and industrial areas of Canada, owing largely to reduced farm product prices, lower wages and unemployment, is reflected in the 1929 report of the executive of the Co-operative Union of Canada, submitted at the opening of the Congress of the Union to-day.

Eighteen of the Union's affiliated retail societies reported a fall in turnover during the year, while ten recorded increase. The net surplus, or profit, of the reporting societies was $44,107 less than the previous year's profit. The "societies" share capital decreased by $32,750 to $356,614.

LOSSES SMALL
The executive stated that only two societies had failed to meet their expenses for the year and their total loss was only $1,102. This result is described as gratifying in view of the heavy shrinkage in business during the depression era in the latter half of last year.

In regard to purchase dividends, twenty retail societies, as compared with twenty-one last year, were able to declare dividends, one society paid no less than ten per cent.

This year of reduced profits the aggregate membership of the thirty-one retail member societies increased by 212 members to 10,643, denoting, apparently, undiminished confidence in the Union's objects and methods. Also, sales of a wholesale character were included in this year's Union report. It was shown the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wholesale Society had been enabled to pay a dividend of one per cent in the first year of its operation.

NOT CONFINED TO EUROPE
The executive attributes the depression reduced turnover to the lower price obtainable for farm products and to the industrial depression which has come to mean lower wages and men out of work. Here the executive makes this observation:

"The fact is significant that such unfavorable conditions are not peculiar to overworked Europe. They are acute on this large and, to considerable extent, unsettled continent, notwithstanding the vast extent of its territory and its almost illimitable resources. Such a condition cannot be attributed to one failure of nature, which is really the only unavoidable reason why, at any time, mankind cannot adequately organize the distribution of the income of the world."

The executive believes recurring cycles of depression would be "completely avoided" if the economic life of the world were reorganized on a co-operative basis. The executive deplores the alleged concentration of wealth and power in the hands of the few and, finding a great disparity in production and purchasing power, labels this to "unavoidable failure of the capitalist system."

FIGHT AGAINST CUTTHROATS

Saskatchewan, July 17.—Prairie farmers are preparing for the advent next summer of a prominent visitor—the pale western cutworm, J. M. King of the Dominion entomological laboratory at Saskatoon urges an impressive reception be given the insect so well, if not, it is known, in the west. Trouble from the unwelcome guest will be greater even than the extensive damage of this year unless adequate precautions are taken, says Mr. King.

LABOR

MR. PLUNKETT MUST HAVE HAD A hard time yesterday evening in trying to prove his party's interest in the cause of labor. Everybody familiar with the political history of Canada knows that ninety per cent of the legislation in the interest of Canadian labor has been placed on the statute books by the party now in office.

In 1900 the Laurier government created the first Department of Labor in this Dominion, which later had Mr. Mackenzie King for its Minister. The Labor Gazette, incidentally, was established and circulated by that department. As is well known, its main features have been a codification of existing laws for the protection of workers in factories, stores, mines, and on the railways, and so on; a record of industrial accidents which has given a basis for better legislation for their prevention; a record of reports of trades unions and union officials giving information of the greatest value to workmen, whereby their position might be improved; excellent reports on the cost of living, on wages in various localities, on efforts here and there to better the condition of wage earners. In a general way, moreover, the Labor Gazette is the official source to which workmen may turn for a knowledge of the conditions under which they are working.

Some thirty years ago Mr. Mackenzie King was appointed to investigate the methods by which government clothing contracts were carried out. He found a revolting sweating system, although the Conservative government had assured the country only a year before that no sweating conditions existed. The new administration prescribed the remedy. Following the revelations which resulted from Mr. King's investigations, the Liberal government instituted the fair wage scale in all public contracts. That government's policy for the settlement of labor disputes needs no explanation. Its success has been established by time.

If the Conservatives had been returned to office in 1926, the old age pensions measure which they opposed in the House of Commons, and which the Conservative majority in the Senate killed for a time, would not have been revived. But the Liberals were returned to power in that election with a comfortable majority and the old age pensions bill was re-introduced and this time passed.

Mr. Plunkett points to the grant which the Conservative government made towards technical education in 1919 as a redeeming feature in an otherwise empty record of disregard for labor. His reference to this matter is rather unfortunate. On two occasions when the people of his own constituency had an opportunity to take advantage of this financial assistance, Mr. Plunkett's newspaper supporter vigorously opposed the proposal.

A CONTRAST

FOR OPERATING A STILL THE MO-ther of seven small children was arrested in New York City the other day. She is in a police station cell; her month-old twin daughters are being cared for in a hospital, a children's society has two more and neighbors are looking after the other three. The still, a small one, had been in operation only a few days. A city policeman made the raid after a tenement inspector had discovered it.

While this woman's still was being raided, a fire was breaking out in a six-story warehouse in another part of New York. It was a disastrous fire, taking the lives of three men; and when the flames died down and the firemen went into the ruins, they found that this warehouse had housed an enormous distillery—the largest, it is said, ever operated in New York since prohibition went into effect. It was so elaborate, in fact, that hundreds of tons of machinery were installed. Its operations never had been interfered with, and if it had not been for that accidental fire, the thing probably would still be turning out its product.

There is an interesting contrast in these two stills. One—a small one, relatively unimportant to the liquor supply of a big city, is raided two or three days after it is put into operation. The other—a tremendous one, so big that it is almost impossible to understand how it could even have been installed without attracting the attention of some official agency—had enjoyed no one knows how many months of immunity. In the end it was destroyed, not by police or federal agents, but by an accidental fire.

The irony of the story to which we have referred lies in the fact that the small operator gets raided and the "big fellow" goes scot free. It also emphasizes the difficulty which our neighbor is experiencing in administering its prohibition law.

STILL IN OFFICE

ALTHOUGH IT HAS EXPERIENCED several narrow escapes from defeat, there seems to be a general disinclination on the part of Conservatives and Liberals to combine and give the MacDonald government its marching orders. Last night a Conservative motion proposing safeguarding of home markets against "unfair foreign competition" was defeated by a vote of 312 to 241—a substantial margin for an administration holding office more or less by the grace of the Liberal party.

How far Great Britain is prepared to go in the matter of tariff reform is not very clear. The present government will not give any encouragement to the principle of protection. A Liberal government would be equally lukewarm to it. But the Conservatives' appeal for support at the next general election unquestionably will be based upon a policy of safeguarding—protection by another name. It would appear, however, that any proposal of this kind, to obtain the endorsement of the British electorate, would have to insure the admission free of duty of foodstuffs and much of the raw material at present imported.

After all, it is not surprising that neither Mr. Baldwin nor Mr. Lloyd George feels inclined to take office and tackle the difficult job of solving the unemployment problem. It was bad enough when the Conservative government left office; but it has grown steadily worse. Meanwhile Mr. MacDonald and his government are having an anxious time counting heads.

CHEER UP!

OUT OF THE HIGHLY-CHARGED POLI-tical atmosphere it is refreshing to see emerge from The Vancouver Province an injunction to cheer up because "business conditions aren't half as bad as some persons think they are." Our contemporary yesterday published this sound advice in its advertising columns:

CHEER UP!

Business conditions aren't half as bad as some persons think they are. If present activity is below that of last year in certain lines it is because last year was abnormal, the crest of a boom which is always followed by a reaction.

Given a more normal comparison with the years 1927 and 1928, business shows a remarkable improvement in 1930 in many lines; that business conditions were good in 1927 and 1928 was conceded on all sides.

More money is being put into savings accounts, homes, bonds and life insurance in Vancouver to-day than ever before. The wild extravagance of stock market speculation has been definitely curbed. Wage-earners and professional men are now placing their faith in realities rather than in hopes. Business is quickly finding a solid foundation.

In May, last year, there were 4,963 vacant dwellings and apartment suites in the Greater Vancouver-New Westminster area. In May of this year the number of vacancies had declined to 4,566. The present building curtailment will soon provide a balance and before long hundreds of our workmen will again be providing homes for this ever-growing community.

THE DAILY PROVINCE

Mr. Bennett and his supporters are trying to make out that the whole country is on the verge of an economic collapse. We suggest the Conservative leader take a leaf out of the book of The Vancouver Daily Province—his principal journalistic supporter in British Columbia—and paint Canada in more cheerful colors.

A MAN AND HIS FAITH

THE GENERATION THAT GREW UP with Sherlock Holmes as its favorite miracle worker cannot look on the death of Conan Doyle as anything less than a personal loss. The number of human beings with really good imaginations is never large; Sir Arthur had one, and it brought enjoyment and a pleasant intellectual stimulation into the lives of millions of people.

Yet it was not solely as the creator of Sherlock Holmes that Conan Doyle is remembered. He had another distinction—a faith, bizarre but strong, which struck a great many of his fellow mortals as outlandish, but which nevertheless sustained and helped him when he needed help very badly. Indeed, now that he is dead it is precisely this queer faith of his that sticks in one's mind.

Conan Doyle was that peculiar anomaly—a believer in an age of confirmed skepticism. Other men might debate the question of determinism, might suggest that men are no better than cunningly-made machines; this aged author could pin his life to the belief that the dead not only lived but could be talked to. He could see a heaven-sent reality beyond the flub-dubbery of table-tappings and dim-lit seance parlors. He could look confidently at the grave as a portal and not as a final resting place.

And this, now that he is gone, is what must stick in our minds. Whether you scoffed at his faith in spiritualism or respected it, there is no blinking this one fact—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle now knows the truth about it.

It may be, after all, that the proof of the pudding is in the eating of it. The works that proceed from faith have been accepted for ages as proper testimonials; and for Conan Doyle, at least, the faith that was in him was something very real and very helpful.

Read the account of his death. There was no terror, no reluctance. He died peacefully; and just before he died he turned to his wife and said: "You are very wonderful."

Dupe or seer, this man at least had found a faith that made death easy. He had found a faith that sustained him in his old age, a faith that kept him from black despair when his son was killed in the trenches of France, a faith that enabled him to die better than most of us will be able to die.

You can think what you please about spiritualism as a faith. But for the man who created Sherlock Holmes, at least—it worked.

THE FUTURE OF INDIA

The Bombay Times of India

If Mr. Gandhi's terms were to be carried out now, India would find herself bankrupt; and, through the sudden introduction of prohibition, she would be confronted with a far more widespread movement of lawlessness than even Mr. Gandhi has been able to stir up.

EMPIRE DEVELOPMENT

The Belfast News Letter

There are in the United Kingdom over a million and a half idle hands, and in the Dominion and Colonies millions of acres of idle lands crying out for development. Many home and Imperial statesmen have pleaded for the binding-together of the Empire by an economic policy which would secure the defence of our common existence in time of war and promote our common interests in the time of peace. That advice has been neglected or followed half-heartedly. The system of Imperial Preference has helped to strengthen the links between the United Kingdom and the Dominions, but it is evident that this line of policy will have to be greatly extended if it is to form a bulwark against those who are working for the disintegration of the Empire.

Loose Ends

A young man bares his soul in gratitude—A tragedy appears imminent across the Bay—and something similar is threatened in Quebec.

By R. H. W.

OCCASIONALLY, BY some strange accident, this column hits upon something that is profoundly true. The other day, for instance, it made a few doddering references to the fate of husbands who are left alone at home while their wives (with a heartlessness of which females only are capable) are a-sunbathing out at the lake or seashore. It occurred to me afterwards that, in a great burst of compassion, I had exaggerated the fate of these unhappy gentlemen. To-day, however, my worst fears were confirmed. As I was leaving this office a young man, scarcely six months married and yet a holiday widower, staggered up and clutched me to his bosom. He said he had read what I had written about men of his kind, and it was so profoundly true that he had broken down and wept. Indeed, he almost broke down and wept again on my neck at the joy of finding in me a kindred spirit, someone who understood. What I had written, said this young man, strong as it was, could not properly convey the depths of misery to which he had sunk since his wife went to the country—but, to be fair, it must be marked again that he had only been married six months. The condition of his house, he said, was only matched by the condition of his soul—one as buried under unwashed dishes and empty tin cans and the other under such a load of grief that he was tempted to jump into the harbor or go to the country himself.

I FOUND, HOWEVER, that there was more to this young man's story, and I understood, when I heard it, his overwhelming gratitude to this column. It seems that his wife also reads this column, apart from which they appear to be a thoroughly respectable couple, and she, too, had read my remarks on wives who desert their homes at this season. And, believe it or not, she had been so moved that she packed all her grips, said good-bye to all her tennis and bridge partners, and hurried home on the next train. And there was such an expression of dumb gratitude on the face of the young man as he told me these things that I could almost have believed myself what I had written. But it occurred to me, when I left, that he must have been a little length had turned to me from his embraces, that if other wives read it and were moved in the same mysterious course and came trundling home to the country, I might not be so popular with husbands who have been married six years. I have heard no words of thanks from them.

WITH A LIMITED knowledge of botany, but an unlimited respect for trees, this column has presumed from time to time to champion the trees of Parliament Square since no one, better equipped, apparently has done so. Speaking then, as the lonely and unrecognized champion of the trees of Parliament Square, I wish to call attention to the distressing condition of some of those splendid native maples which grow along Belleville Street, and are the chief ornament of the entire square, not excepting the buildings themselves. I am alarmed to find that three of these trees are going to die unless something is done about them; not immediately, but a lingering and miserable death, from what I take to be starvation. The foliage this year is thin and miserable, the leaves are small, and instead of being an impressive mass of green, which the lonely tree of maples, the trees are transparent objects said to look upon.

THOUGH PUBLIC bodies, such as governments, never seem to have discovered the fact, trees, like human beings, must eat to live. And if the governments of British Columbia got no more food than the trees of Parliament Square it would soon lose that well-fed look which I am glad to say, is so distinctive of it, and so excellent a tribute to the prosperity of this country. In fact, the constant loss and decay of leaves provides new soil and new food for the trees. On the lawns of the Parliament Buildings gardeners sweep up every leaf as it falls, with such care that you would think that the fall of leaves was as serious a matter as the fall of the government. Thus they go on new soil for the trees. They are living on the same old food which they had when they were planted half a century ago. So far they have survived, for the native maple, like the native Canadian, is a vigorous organism. But the condition of the trees near the northwest corner shows that nature cannot stand this starvation much longer. In any private grounds which were properly kept, these trees would have been fed by the injection of new earth about their roots long ago. This column, I fear, has no more influence with the government than it has with anyone else, but perhaps someone distinguished enough to know the government may read this in a moment of weakness. If he does, I hope he will tell the government that its trees for they do not deserve that fate which some day details all governments. Governments can be replaced overnight, but a fifty-foot maple is the product of a lifetime.

THE IRRESISTIBLE march of progress and efficiency has penetrated into furthest Quebec. Before it the little cart, drawn by dogs, which is one of the most charming sights on the Quebec highway, is to disappear. The roads department of the Quebec Government has just issued instructions strictly banning such vehicles from the road as dangerous to modern traffic. Nothing is sacred any more from the demands of speed and the oppressiveness of civilization. You may be sure that speed and civilization will not stop with banning the dogs from Quebec. The next thing to go will be those preposterous and delightful old carriages on which you may drive about the ancient city of Quebec behind a single ancient horse, and a cabby who has been there since the morning Wolfe landed. I am glad I drove about in such a vehicle while there was yet time. I am glad that I saw the citadel on its towering cliff above the river, the chunks of green ice sweeping out to sea in the current, and then back again with the tide, the angling narrow streets of the Old Town, and the Plains of Abraham, in that leisurely fashion impossible with an automobile. I am glad, too, that I met old Michael, the cabby, before he, too, is banned by law, and listened to his stories of Quebec, all of them priceless and most of them utterly false, though they have been accepted as gospel by many generations of foreign tourists.

IF THIS DEMAND for efficiency persists they may even abolish that queer, old, open-air market where the red-faced habitation farmers bring their maple sugar in to sell just as the last snow is melting in April. And some day, perhaps, though one shudders to think of it, there will be modern highways in place of those cobblestone streets which curl down the hillside to the river in strange spirals and terrifying grades, on the footpaths of Champlain and Frontenac. But perhaps Quebec, different from all other cities in other things, will be different in this also, will have the strength of mind to remain always Quebec.

PERTH VOTERS HEAR BENNETT STATE VIEWS

Federal Conservative Leader
Repeats High Tariff Arguments in Ontario

Perth, Ont., July 17.—Hon. R. B. Bennett, Federal Conservative leader, back from Quebec and the Maritimes, addressed a meeting here in the constituency of Lanark, yesterday afternoon. With a four-cornered fight taking place, the opposition leader spoke in support of the Conservative official Conservative candidate. The other contestants are Dr. W. S. Murphy, Independent Conservative; B. H. Soper, Liberal; and Miss Mildred Low, Independent.

Mr. Thompson said he was asking for nothing personally in this campaign. He believed the Conservative Party would bring prosperity to the country. Mr. Bennett gave it as his view that the reason people were taking such an interest in the campaign was because unemployment was so great and revenue and trade had fallen.

The effect of the Fordney-McCumber tariff of the United States, said Mr. Bennett, was that Canadian farmers and producers had lost $100,000,000 in the first year after the measure became law—$100 for every farm in Canada.

TARIFF CHANGES
Continuing his argument for higher tariff rates, Mr. Bennett asked: "Do you realize that of all the nations in the world Canada was the only one to lower its tariff since the war—that it was lowered three times between 1922 and 1930? Senator Raoul Dandurand stood on the rostrum of the League of Nations and boasted the Dominion had been the only country to reduce its tariff since the war. "They cheered him over there," the Conservative leader continued, "why should they not when Canada was making it easier for goods of Czechoslovakia and other countries with cheap wage standards to send their goods into Canada?"

Woolen mills in numerous parts of Ontario had been closed, said Mr. Bennett. That was an illustration of what had happened in consequence of the action taken by the government, he said. Speaking of the cotton, Mr. Bennett declared practically all factories were either working part time or were closed down.

Sooke

The annual school meeting held in Sooke Hall on Saturday, elected C. Thompson, Church Road, as trustee in place of Lee Warner, who retired from the board.

Celebration of Holy Communion at Holy Trinity Church on Sunday will be at 11 o'clock. The preacher will be Ven. Archdeacon Laycock.

Among a party from Duncan who visited Sooke on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Sanderson. They were accompanied on their return by Master Arthur Brownsey, who will spend a holiday in Duncan.

Mr. Lucas, Sooke Road, is spending a few days in Victoria.

Mrs. Cooke of Victoria is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Horwood, Sooke Road. Sunday visitors to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horwood were Mr. and Mrs. McCallum of Victoria.

Mrs. Gamble of Duncan was a weekend guest of Mrs. C. Richardson, Sooke Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their two boys of Victoria have taken a cottage on Church Road, where they will spend several weeks.

PILES NEW CONDITIONS MUST BE MET

THE TORONTO GLOBE

The intra-Empire trade plan now before the voters cannot be expected to come into effect automatically. There is work to be done. The remodeling of an empire's method of doing business is a tremendous undertaking. But down through the centuries Great Britain—the nation of traders—has shown how this could be done. It is no novel experience. When Britannia's apogee was reached in the Mediterranean they sailed around the Cape of Good Hope. When obstacles appeared elsewhere they reached out to new routes. And every obstacle led to expansion, carried the Union Jack to further corners of the Seven Seas. Trade followed the flag. The products of British factories were carried to the furthest points, and materials were brought back for food supplies and fabrication of manufactures.

How Britain thus became a nation of traders and threw open her own ports to encourage the world-wide interchange of commodities is a matter of history. It is equally well known how she has periodically shifted ballast and sail to meet new conditions, perhaps slowly, but always surely.

Now another change is coming over the scene. One country after another with which Britain has traded is locking itself behind tariff walls in a desperate effort to meet war debts. British exports have declined tremendously in a few years. Her ships cannot go out laden as of old, and correspondingly, huge cargoes cannot be carried back in return.

It has become apparent to the keenest of British statesmen and business men that new conditions call for new policies. Since the war Canada's trade has expanded to every major country on the map. The opportunity to meet a dearth of supplies was grasped effectively, with the result that this country in a few years shipped abroad commodities worth hundreds of millions of dollars more than she bought in return. But Canada is also now faced with the conditions met by the business of Great Britain—to a much lesser extent, it is true, because Canada's purchasing power has remained tremendous, and she has more to offer, comparatively, in return for markets. The situation is there, nevertheless. Her nearest neighbor—the country with which she has been doing her greatest business—has delivered a severe blow by putting up the tariff bars higher.

It has become apparent to Canada that new conditions call for new policies. Nothing quite the same has happened before. Canada, like Britain, has to strike out on different lines.

What more logical step is to take? To Great Britain and the other parts of the Empire? Together we comprise one-quarter of the earth's surface, we have one-quarter of the world's population, we have every commodity within the Empire that any part of it needs; we have an Empire mostly in a state of development, with needs increasing yearly; we have common interests and common ambitions; our aggregate imports amount to $11,000,000,000 annually, coming mostly from foreign nations. Let us capitalize our mutual needs to our mutual advantage, agree to trade together as much as possible; grow together and individually, and prosper accordingly?

That is what Canada has said through the Dunning Budget, on which the voters will pronounce on July 28.

In the intra-Empire trade Budget Canadians have a magnificent and inspiring rallying cry, becoming more convincing the closer it is studied. It has aroused enthusiasm in all parts of the Empire, only in this country has the voice of patriotism been raised to stifle the voice of patriotism—throwing obstacles in the way of a clear public mandate to proceed on the road to prosperity.

This is unfortunate. The objective is one which can be subscribed to regardless of party. Manifestly the first duty of Canadians is to place their imprimatur on the Empire Budget, and let their delegates go to the Imperial Economic Conference with a clear endorsement so that the plan proposed in this Budget may retain the leadership it has already established elsewhere as the proper means to the desired end.

Piles Go Quick
Without Salves or Cutting
Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts.

Dr. J. E. Leonard, after years of study, discovered a real internal Pile remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 990 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonard's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery (Adv.).

WEDDING HELD AT ST. MARY'S

Miss Violet I. Chatton Becomes Bride of Frank E.
Grimshaw

In the presence of a large congregation at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, yesterday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. Canon A. E. de L. Nunns united in marriage Violet Irene, elder daughter of the late Albert Chatton and Mrs. Chatton, Bouchier Avenue, and Frank Edward Grimshaw, only son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Grimshaw, Hampton Road. The church was attractively decorated for the happy occasion, tall blue standard candles flanking the altar, and the bride and groom were seated in the center of the choir stalls.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Mr. W. J. Dandridge, the bride looked charming in her wedding gown of white tulle over flesh pink, with full, ankle-length skirt inset with shirred panels of lace, and long light sleeves of lace. Her veil of silk net was fastened to a cap of lace, with clusters of orange blossoms falling over each ear, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and white sweet peas tied with pink tulle.

The two bridesmaids wore gowns fashioned alike of flowered net, Miss Dulcie Chatton, sister of the bride, wearing the net over pale green with yoke and full sleeves of green, and edged at the hem with green, and carried pale pink sweet peas, while

Miss Dorothy Grimshaw, sister of the bridegroom, was in flowered net over peach, with sleeves and deep hem of the peach, and carried mauve sweet peas. Both wore large hats of lace with drooping brims, trimmed with long streamers of velvet to match their gowns.

Little Patsy Hutchinson was a dainty flower girl in a full frock of pale blue tulle, trimmed with pink bebe ribbon, and she carried a blue basket filled with sweet peas and rosebuds. The best man was Jack Thomson, and the ushers were Messrs. Clinton Chatton, Hugh Francis and Claude Armour. During the signing of the register Frank Partridge sang a solo.

A reception and dance followed the service at St. Mary's Hall, which had been decorated with baskets of roses and lilies. The four-tier bride cake was placed on a small table lighted with tall pink candles in silver holders and arranged with pink sweet peas and was surmounted with a silver vase filled with tiny rosebuds. The bride and groom left later on a motoring trip up the island, and on their return will make their home in Victoria. Mr. Grimshaw being the proprietor of Beauty-Craft, Fort Street. The bride traveled in a smart sports suit of pale blue with a long coat and hat en suite. Mr. and Mrs. Grimshaw were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

The sketch club of the Islands Arts and Crafts were delightfully entertained at the home of Lady Bernard, Clovelly, Sea Terrace, on Monday, when the delphiniums and roses were at the height of their summer flowering and the glimpses of mountains and sea, and vistas of Victoria across the harbor were much admired. Tea was served in the summer house. Members are asked to meet next Monday at the foot of Robert Street, taking the Esquimalt car at the accustomed hour.

ASK FOR SURVEY OF SALARIES OF ALL TEACHERS

Canadian Federation Favors Salary Schedules on Uniform Basis

Edmonton, July 17.—Placing of teachers' salary schedules on a uniform basis in various zones through the Dominion, was favored at the Wednesday morning session of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, now in annual conference here. It was felt that such an arrangement should be made to form a proper basis for negotiations with school boards.

A report of an investigation of salaries was presented by A. E. Hearn on behalf of the Manitoba Teachers' Federation. As a result of the discussion, the committee of the Manitoba organization was named to act as a body to further the national work in connection with a survey of salaries, so as to establish a paper value of the professional services of teachers. This central committee will be assisted by similar bodies in the various provinces. Examinations also came up for further discussion, the delegates again taking up the report from the special committee of Alberta Teachers' Alliance. The recommendation for a Dominion-wide survey was adopted, as also was one calling for an allocation from the National Research Council of a grant to carry on research work concerning examinations.

The Alberta committee, of which M. L. Watts of Calgary is chairman, was named as a central body to continue to deal with the question of examinations, while it will have the co-operation of sub-committees in each other province.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MRS. MARY L. COOKE

Mrs. Cooke will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children, a magazine and self-contained course forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

NO CHILD IS PERFECT.

REGARDLESS OF DISCIPLINE

Mothers are so much more comfortable in following any line of conduct, they have the applause and commendation of their families and friends. The mothers who thrive on opposition are in the minority; the vast number want Mrs. A. to admit that they are feeding their babies just exactly right, and if she disagrees they won't be happy until they have persuaded her. In the matter of discipline there are always two camps engaged in constant warfare. One camp is all for peace, persuasion and an education toward obedience. The other is for instant, painful punishment unless there is perfect obedience. What possible argument can bring these camps together? None that I can think of. One type of mother couldn't possibly be persuaded that her child needed to be whipped to make a "good" child of him, the other couldn't be convinced that any other method is usable. They are two distinct types of personalities and what phases one offends the other.

NO PERFECT CHILDREN

What both camps need to realize is that by no method ever devised were we able to raise perfect children. There are no perfect children. Children when dumped into this complicated existence we call home and society have a thousand things to learn. They start learning from the first day of their lives. They learn not to cry for attention, if their mothers are wise enough to teach them. They learn to wait for their meals and baths and outings, not to demand and get them at their own sweet will. They learn that somethings can be touched and handled, while others must be dropped when mother says "No, no baby." They learn these things by patient repetition, not by hand slappings. They learn by seeing that mother is patient and unflappable when they continue their reprehensible lines of conduct. They learn far better from a soft voiced mother who is consistent in her attitude of saying "no" to some things and then offering dozens of other pleasant substitutes. They learn by doing so many, many things during the day that the few things they can't do are accepted without a murmur. They learn by always seeing around them the kind of exemplary conduct they can follow.

LEARN BY REPETITION

Being children, they need to be told over and over the very same things. Not in a mean way, not angrily, but patiently. Children learn much more aptly when they are not confused by scenes of strong emotion. No mother would ever be convinced that any teacher was justified in spanking her child. She would tell the world at large that she didn't send her child to school to be punished but to be taught. But both mother and teacher show themselves lacking in a knowledge of sound educational methods when they resort to punishment.

One mother said, "Tact and understanding may be all right for some children but others just have to be spanked." Shall I wonder to you what children have to be hurt to make an impression on them? Children of low mentality—without the ability to learn—surely no mother deliberately admits that her child belongs in that class.

I.O.D.E. EXPENDS MUCH MONEY IN BURSARIES

RECOMMENDATIONS

Two recommendations from the committee were approved. First, the publishing in book form a brief account of the life and work of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, and other similar small books dealing with British and Canadian inventions, their history and development. The second asked that the national executive committee endorse the action of the Branch Chapter in making the birthplace of Pauline Johnson a national memorial.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

In conclusion Miss Cooke reported that the following resolutions were passed:

1. The establishing of a fund for the development of the work of the order. "I understand it is to be called the Stewart endowment fund as a tribute to Mrs. J. A. Stewart."

2. One to urge the Federal government to so amend section 274 of the Criminal Code as to provide more severe punishment for parents and others guilty of cruelty to children.

3. One reaffirming the order's endorsement of cadet training in the schools as one of the finest movements for training in citizenship.

4. That a special certificate be given to all holders of I.O.D.E. bursaries and scholarships.

5. One very comprehensive one dealing with Empire trade and the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference. Mrs. E. C. Hayward moved a vote of thanks to Miss Cooke, which was seconded by Mrs. P. F. Curtis. Mrs. Curtis Sampson on behalf of Municipal Chapter, presented Miss Cooke with a beautiful basket of pink sweet peas following the adjournment of the meeting, refreshments were served under the co-sponsorship of Mrs. A. E. Hopkins and Mrs. P. E. Corby, assisted by members of the Major John Hadden Collegiate Chapter and others. The table was arranged with baskets of roses and delphiniums, and the reception room was attractively decorated with flowers, the work of Mrs. Gillespie, Mrs. Orange, Mrs. Prior, Mrs. Eve and Mrs. Hopkins. Mrs. Curtis Sampson was presented with a beautiful spray of flowers by Miss Claire Allan on behalf of Municipal Chapter.

KUMTUKS GUESTS AT MT. NEWTON

Rev. Montague Bruce Host to Business Women Yesterday
Evening

Members of the Kumtuka Club enjoyed the general hospitality of the president of the Rotary Club, Rev.
Montague Bruce, yesterday evening
when they held the first of their summer picnic outings at his charming home at Mount Newton Cross Road.
About forty-five members and their friends, journeyed out to Saanich by bus and private car, and were cordially welcomed by the "Padre" on their arrival.

After a ramble around the beautiful gardens, just now ablaze with a riot of summer flowers, the visitors enjoyed tennis and baseball, the latter causing much amusement on the part of both teams and spectators. Supper was served on the broad terrace overlooking a wonderful panorama of sea and mountains, and with the coming of dusk hundreds of colored electric lights and Japanese lanterns transformed the grounds into a veritable fairland. Dancing was enjoyed to the strains of the radio and the electric Victrola.

Shortly after 10 o'clock, the guests returned to the city, after tendering their collective and individual thanks to their genial host for his very kind hospitality.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

MUCH ARGUMENT has taken place at various times as to the relative hitting effectiveness of Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey. Many of the old-timers stick by "Bub" Robert, while the present day cynic-in-the-wool fans claim Dempsey was the greatest. Let's make a short review of the careers of both these famous heavyweights.

The fact that Fitzsimmons was done as a fighter shortly after Dempsey began his ring career, restricts the modern debaters to the recorded knockouts achieved by him. Strangely enough each of these gladiators scored forty-seven knockouts against opponents of varying ability, and while Dempsey was put to sleep but once early in his career, Fitz was counted out five times. Three of the knockouts recorded against the Cornishman were received after he had passed the peak of his form and left the forty-year mark behind.

The ablest fighters stopped by Dempsey were Jess Willard, Billy Miske, Bill Brennan, George Carpentier, Luis Firpo and Jack Sharkey. Willard was slow as an ox, untrained and with little defensive skill. Miske, a good defensive boxer, went ten and six rounds respectively to no decision with Dempsey in 1918, at which time Miske was in excellent form. In 1920, Miske, suffering from a complaint that caused his death, was put away by Dempsey in three rounds.

Firpo, who was not a boxer, but a hard hitter, would doubtless have won from Dempsey if the South American had had efficient handling, and not been unjustly treated by the referee. The latter permitted Dempsey to stand over the fallen Firpo and strike him before he really reached his feet. The official also permitted Dempsey, when the latter had been knocked out of the ring, to be helped back through the ropes, despite the fact that the rules require a man who is knocked out or fall out of the ring, to return unassisted within ten seconds or he counted out.

Carpentier as a heavyweight never classed highly, and never defeated a first class man in the heavyweight division. Jack Sharkey, who had the advantage of Dempsey up to the seventh round, was knocked out in this session after appealing to the referee on what he claimed was a foul. As to the other knockout victims of Dempsey, they were of the ordinary type. Tommy Gibbons, a good defensive boxer, stopped by Dempsey in 1923, when the champion was in top form.

Now placed at the calibre of men stopped by Fitzsimmons. Among the number was nonpareil Jack Dempsey, middleweight champion of America, and a boxer of superlative skill. Fitz stopped him in thirteen rounds. Peter Maher, one of the hardest hitters in history, succumbed to Fitz's fists in twelve rounds. It has been asserted Fitz was the beneficiary of a long count in an early round. It is true that Fitz seldom entered the ring without being floored one or more times, but he usually arose in time and finished his opponent.

The big thing in Fitz's knockout record was his victory over Jim Corbett, cleverest defensive boxer in the history of the heavyweight division. Corbett never had stopped up to March 17, 1897, when he met disaster in the battle at Carson City, Nevada. The fact that he had met such famous fighters as Peter Jackson, John L. Sullivan and others, and that none of them laid a glove on him with knockout effect, shows that Fitz's task was when he faced the then champion at Carson City.

It was in this battle that Fitz demonstrated his right to the claim of strategist of the roped square. He realized that he had small chance of hitting Corbett on the chin, with either right or left, and he laid his plans to land a blow in the stomach. Fitz was down on one knee taking the count in the sixth round, with blood flowing from his mouth. This was the result of Corbett's steady pumping of straight lefts to Fitz's face. However, Fitz with his wonderful chest development and lung power quickly recovered. In the fourteenth round Fitz landed a right at Corbett's head, which shifted and shot a terrific left to Corbett's stomach and the bout ended right there.

Another noted fighter stopped by Fitz was Tom Sharkey. Fitz met Sharkey twice, losing one bout and winning the other. In science and ring strategy Fitz was far superior to the Manassas Mauler. In addition, the calibre of heavies that Fitz met during his career was much greater than those that Dempsey encountered. What would have happened had Fitz met Dempsey when both were in their prime is a matter of opinion and leaves room for plenty of argument.

"Kid" Chocolate Pressed to Win From Quadrini

New York, July 17.—Kid Chocolate, Cuban negro, contender for the world's championship, was pressed to win from the Queensborough Stadium Tuesday night. Chocolate weighed 128½, Quadrini 126.

Chocolate found the Italian featherweight a somewhat difficult opponent to fathom. The Italian fought a great defensive battle.

Only in the sixth was Quadrini in serious danger of a knockout. Chocolate smashed the Italian to the ropes with a right cross to the chin and then landed in boxing both hands to the face and body. Quadrini weathered the storm, however.

Expect $200,000 Gate For Championship Lightweight Bout

Sleek Challenger, a Natural Lightweight, Figured to Have a Good Chance to Lift World Title From Veteran Mandell, Who Will Likely Retire if Beaten; Bout Starts About 5.30 o'clock Victoria Time and Will Be Broadcast by NBC.

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer
New York, July 17.—The purses of the fight faithful loosened to-day and piled up a pot of gold for Sammy Mandell and Young Al Singer to fight to-night in the ring at the Yankee Stadium. Last-minute predictions were for a $200,000 gate. This will be Mandell's second defence of his lightweight title here in two years.

KRUSE WILL MEET ZIKOV HERE AGAIN

Portlander and Russian Lion Matched For Wrestling Go on Saturday Night

Catch as Catch Can Rules the Order; "Rocky" Brooks Will Meet Anderson

Pages in sport history will be turned back Saturday night at the Tillicum gymnasium, when Bob Kruse, Portland, and Zikov, the Russian Lion, will grapple for an hour and a half straight, or the best two out of three falls, in a match slated under the "catch-as-catch-can" rules. The punishing rabbit punch, which has been Kruse's most deadly weapon, is barred, as are other recent innovations in the grappling game, such as the flying tackle, originated by "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, world's heavyweight champion; butting with the head, kicking, and many other antics foreign to the old wrestling game. In fact to tell the story in a few words, the boys are going to wrestle and wrestle clean.

BROOKS MATCHED

In the semi-windup bout "Rocky" Brooks, local mat man, will grapple with Desmond Anderson, Olympia, Wash. Runner-up to the world's amateur championship at the Olympic games and since that time appearing in a number of professional bouts. Anderson should prove a tough handful for Brooks.

Dulepsinhji Has Fine Innings For Gentlemen's Team

London, July 17.—A fine innings by Prince Dulepsinhji for the Gentlemen against the Players at Lords was the high spot in English first class cricket yesterday. Dulepsinhji scored 97, not out, of the Gentlemen's total of 218 for eight wickets. Rain seriously interfered with play in matches all over the country.

First day scores were:
Surrey vs. Somerset, at Kennington Oval—Surrey, 91 for seven wickets.
Gloucestershire vs. Yorkshire, at Bristol—Yorkshire, 265 for three wickets (Oldroyd, 127; Mitchell, 85).
Gloucestershire vs. Sussex, at Poutney—No play, rain.
Worcestershire vs. Leicestershire, at Worcester—No play, rain.
Australians vs. Scotland, at Edinburgh—Scotland, 149 for three wickets.

FOXY PHANN

It's great to be with a big-hearted man if he keeps quiet about it

Some money appeared in the marts of chance at odds of 2 to 1 on the sleek challenger. If the same odds prevail at ring time, Singer will be the shortest priced challenger since Pancho Villa knocked out the aged Jimmy White for the flyweight crown back in the days when fouls were something to be frowned upon.

By special ruling of the New York state boxing board, there can be no foul to-night. Both the champion and the challenger have agreed to equip themselves with such protective devices as they consider will render them immune to low blows. If either winds up on the floor he will have to look for sympathy in the voice of the referee, tolling off the count of ten.

The shifts in the tide toward Singer appears unjustified by past records of the gladiators, although it is generally admitted that Mandell, after eleven years of warfare, has begun to show signs of wear. He reached his peak in whipping husky Jimmy McLaughlin in the Polo grounds two years ago, but since then the clouting Celt has elaborated the champion in over weight matches. Sammy had a desperate time edging out the decision over Tony Cannon in his last title defence in Chicago, almost a year ago.

MANDELL HAS TROUBLE

The increasing years have added to the difficulty Mandell always experienced in making the class limit of 135 pounds. Singer, a genuine lightweight, has had no trouble holding his own strength at 124 pounds.

The chances are Sammy will retire to-night if Singer chases him into the shadows. A careful champion, Mandell has piled up a fortune of about $250,000, although he has defended his crown only three times since winning it in 1926 from Rocky Kananas in Chicago. Sammy kept himself busy in the over-weight and no decision fights.

Salient facts about Mandell-Singer fight:
Principals—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Al Singer, twenty-year-old challenger.
Place—Yankee Stadium.
Time of main bout—About 8.30 p.m.
Estimated crowd—40,000.
Estimated receipts—$200,000.
Broadcasting—National Broadcasting Company.

Preliminary, semi-finals—South American light flyweight champion Justo Suarez and Joe Glick, Brooklyn, ten rounds.
Other bouts—Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, vs. Ernie Peters, Chicago, eight rounds after main bout.

GALLANT FOX TO GET REST

Colt Is Withdrawn From Arlington Cup; Has Been Suffering For Last Two Days

Chicago, July 17.—Gallant Fox will not be a starter in the $25,000 Arlington Cup Saturday.

He was withdrawn yesterday. William Woodward, New York banker, owner of the super horse, and Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons decided they would be asking too much of the colt to match his speed against older stars in the cup event, especially in view of the fact he is beginning to show the strain of his hard campaign.

They decided it best not to start him as he suffered in the Arlington classic Saturday. Earl Sande, who rode him in the classic, said he found it necessary to shake up the Fox vigorously to win by a neck from Gallant Knight. The thoroughbred was given a slow gallop twice around the course yesterday and he returned to the barn in a bitter mood. Tuesday he sulked dejectedly because of this show of temper. George Tappen, one of the assistant trainers, called Fitzsimmons and Woodward in New York recommending the withdrawal.

Gallant Fox will be shipped to Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Saturday, to rest up for the rich purses in which he will compete next month.

The Fox has been temperamental since the running of the classic. Tappen explained that he did not want to race any more, at least for a time. "I think it is best to give him a rest."

Blue Larkspur, 1929 three-year-old champion, is a certain starter in the cup. Other outstanding speedsters entered are Beau, Mississipp, Re-vellie Boy, sensational winner of the American Derby; Totie, The Nut, Victorian, Pete H. Wrack, Paul Bunyan and Sandy Ford.

Later in the afternoon exhibitions of canoe paddling were given, while the function was brought to a close in the evening with prize presentation ceremonies and a dance.

Results of the different events follow:
Long distance race—1. Denny Walker, Husky Association Junior, Wins Distance Race Easily.

"Y" SWIMMERS TAKE HONORS IN LAKE GALA

Denny Walker, Husky Association Junior, Wins Distance Race Easily
Eleanor Peden of Same Club Gains Two Victories; "Y" Divers Win

Victoria Y.M.C.A. swimmers virtually made a clean sweep of open events in the annual Langford Lake held in front of the Lakeside Ten Rooms yesterday, when they walked off with men's and women's competitions both in swimming and diving.

In the feature of the day, Denny Walker, husky association boy, showed the way in the Langford distance event. He took a good lead from the start and increased his margin throughout the race. At the finish he was a good hundred and fifty yards ahead of his closest challenger, Orville Findlay.

Walker completed the course, which is well over a half mile, in twelve and one-half minutes. Findlay's time was fourteen minutes forty-nine seconds and Winnie Pollard's, seventeen minutes and thirty-three seconds.

Eleanor Peden, also of the "Y," showed the way in the second open event, winning handsily from Josephine Sheldon-Williams in the sixty yards girls under sixteen.

Her young brother, Doug, was in a class by himself in the boys' under sixteen's sixty yards, winning from Robert Holley, of Langford.

SECOND VICTORY
Eleanor added another first place to total in the women's event. Mary McRae and Pat Copeland fought valiantly to the finish in a bunch, but were slightly behind the winner. Miss McRae took second place by a touch. Tired by his distance race, Doug Walker placed second to Francis in the men's sixty yards open, with Orville Findlay of the Crystal Garden club finishing third.

The divers had a hard time competing the terrific wind that sprung up during the afternoon but showed good control in the majority of their stunts.

In the women's event, Pat Copeland did a close win over Bryden in the men's event from the three metre board. Degree of difficulty was not considered in the judging. Bill Clark was third, up for the rich purses in which he will compete next month.

In the Langford Lake women's 150 yard freestyle event, Verlyn Lawson victory over Cecily Bennett.

The duck chase proved a feature of the meet when it was found that the bird was more at home in the water than the swimmers. It was finally rounded up by canoe and beamed onto the surface after the duck had led the pursuers alover the south end of the lake.

Stiff Matches In Clay Court Play

Fine Tennis Witnessed Yesterday in City Championship Tournament; Marsh Gordon Given Hard Match by Paul Phillips; Weinstein Advances at Expense of Veteran Rev. Ryall; Don Campbell Finds No Trouble Winning From Steve Jones; Reach Semi-finals To-day.

Yesterday's play in the city clay court tennis championships at the Kingston Street courts produced many excellent matches. The favorites continued to win although they were hard pressed to chalk up victories in most cases. To-day's matches are expected to bring out the best tennis yet as the players will be seeking to enter the semi-finals.

Marsh Gordon withstood a stiff challenge from Paul Phillips, who played the three sets and was chiefly due to his steadiness in the rallies that carried him to victory. Phillips took the first set at 6-3 and it seemed as if he were going to win, but Gordon took the initiative in the second set and carried the battle to his opponent and ran out at 6-1. The third set was well fought but Gordon's steadiness when it was needed brought him through with the loss of three games. Irving Weinstein was hitting the lines all over the court yesterday and had little trouble with the veteran Rev. Ryall, who put up a good fight against odds. Weinstein's volleying was accurate and carried plenty of punch and he scored many points from above the service line with well placed volleys.

CAMPBELL WINS EASILY
Don Campbell, who is in the lower brackets, disposed of Steve Jones in a disappointing encounter in which Campbell had the upper hand throughout except in the latter stages of the second set when Jones made a belated rally that fell short of the desired goal. Campbell stayed on the base line and just batted the balls back to Jones who made many errors. Jones made some good volleys in the second set but couldn't get his shots to work consecutively. Campbell now the winner of the Cunningham-Buchler match to gain the semi-finals of the lower half of the men's singles. The Campbell-Jones match was 6-1, 6-4.

Tommy Forbes gave Ross Hocking all he wanted in the first set of their singles match when he carried the set to 6-4, but fell off base in the second set and lost to his opponent at 6-1. Yesterday's series follow:

The Sons by their victory increased their lead over the Eagles, second place club, to a full game.

FRANK WYKOFF TO TAKE REST

Star Sprinter of University of California Unable to Stand Training Grind

Los Angeles, July 17.—His long training grind beginning to show on him, Frank Wykoff, star sprinter of the University of southern California, will not run in the national A.A.U. meet at Pittsburgh next month.

Dean Cromwell, track coach of S.C., announced last night Wykoff would not run at either Pittsburgh or in the international meet with representatives of the British Empire at Chicago August 27.

A conference of Wykoff's parents, his trainers and a family physician resulted in the decision to end the twenty-year-old youth's track activities for the season.

Wykoff is intercollegiate 100-yard champion and has run the century in 9.4 seconds twice this year. He is not sturdy, however, and the training grind begun last January has begun to tell on him.

Five C's Now Tied For Leadership In Cricket Tournament

Victoria Eleven Defeats Burrards and Occupy First Place in Company With Vancouver Wednesday in Series for Pacific Coast Cricket Championship; Two Leaders Play To-day in What Promises To Be Keen Match; Upper Island and Vancouver Battle to Draw.

Vancouver, July 17.—Five C's of Victoria beat Burrards and Vancouver Wednesday team trimmed the O.I.s, with the remaining game between Upper Island and Vancouver ending in a draw, marked the third day's play yesterday in the Pacific Coast cricket tournament at Brockton Point. The results place Five C's and Vancouver Wednesday tied for leadership with seven points each, with these two strong elevens scheduled to meet to-day in what promises to be the most interesting encounter of the series.

Starting Stalls Will Be Used On Victoria Tracks

Separate starting stalls for the ponies will be used on local race tracks this year, it was announced this morning by Percy Fox of the Colwood Park Association, by means of these stalls much of the delays at the post will be avoided and in addition the horses all get a better break at the barrier.

The stalls have been in use at Vancouver tracks this year and after inspecting the manner in which they work, the local officials have arranged to utilize them on Victoria oval.

Through the building of the new track at the Willows this year, it will be possible for twelve horse fields to run at the town oval as well as at Colwood. In the past, owing to the sharpness of turns and the small width of the track, only eight ponies could run in each event at the Willows.

Five C's commenced weakly against Burrards, losing five wickets for forty-eight runs in the first forty-five minutes of play, when Darcus and Payne came to the rescue in a splendid partnership that carried the score to 119 for six wickets. In an eight-wicket partnership Pillar and Darcus carried the score from 119 to 172.

Darcus scored ninety-four runs in an impressive exhibition of forever drives on the off side and clean cutting through the slip. Eden Qualton bowled well for the Islanders in securing five wickets for a cost of 33 runs.

The Vancouver Oval's gave a mediocre display with the bat against the Wednesday team, Vernon Lester trundling quite as well as his final analysis of seven wickets for 33 runs indicates. For the winners Chamberlain and Ward batted most effectively.

The match on the oval, between Vancouver and the Upper Island players, provided sixty minutes of intense excitement with the Island team fighting against the clock to hit off the home total of 266 declared, put up by the Vancouver team. Reed played a sparkling innings of 84 for Vancouver. With two hours and a quarter left to bat the visiting cricketers set a remarkable pace of run getting. The opening batsmen, Sharp and Edens hit freely, and with rare consistency in scoring 177 before Sharp was dismissed for a magnificent innings of 126, included in which were three sixes and four fours.

Edens, who was dismissed for 33, hit a long hop and leaving the crease with the score at 239 for three wickets, leaving 27 runs to win and over seven minutes for play. Two or three dropped catches, several "near runs out," and frenzied efforts to drive the ball out of the ground, ended one of the most unusual encounters seen on a local cricket field.

Split Double-header With Chicago Cubs to Retain Three-game Advantage; Neither Giants nor Cards Look Dangerous as They Lose Games to Low Ranking Clubs; Athletics Gain Half Game in American League by Win as Washington Splits Twin Bill.

Brooklyn got only an even break as they opened their all-important series yesterday with the Chicago Cubs in an exciting double-header, but they remained in first place in the National League by a three-game margin.

Chicago started off well as Pat Malone pitched a five-hit game and the Cubs won it 6 to 4, but Wilbert Robinson countered with old Adolfo Luque in the second contest and the Robins backed him up with some heavy hitting to win 5 to 3.

If the Cubs win all three games of the series that are left, they still will be a few games behind first place, although tied in games, and must then tackle the New York Giants, while the Robins are entertaining slightly easier opposition in the St. Louis Cardinals. Neither the Giants nor the Cards looked like serious opponents yesterday. They both were victims of hitting sprees by low ranking clubs. The Giants lost an 8 to 1 decision to Cincinnati, Phil Collins kept the Cards under control while the Phillies were pounding out a 10 to 5 victory.

Boston and Pittsburgh divided a double header. The Boston Braves won the first contest, 4 to 2, with a ninth-inning rally behind Tom Zachary's five-hit pitching, but went down 6 to 5 in the second, although they made thirteen hits, including Wally Berger's twenty-fifth home run.

In the American League, Philadelphia added a half game to their lead over Washington by slamming out a 14 to 7 victory over the Senators. Washington divided a pair of heavy hitting games with the Cleveland Indians. The Senators triumphed in the first 10 to 4, but in the second Cleveland won by a 12 to 6 count.

Ed Wells of the New York Yankees and Walter Stewart, rival southpaw from St. Louis, put on the leading pitching duel of the day and the Yankees gained a 2 to 1 victory on a pair of home runs, one by Harry Rice and the other by Lou Gehrig.

At Detroit the Tigers best Boston, 3 to 2.

DICKIE WANTS TO MAKE CANADA FINEST COUNTRY

Nanaimo Conservative Candidate Says Liberals Have Been Backward

If He Is Elected Though He Will See That Canada Gets Place in Sun

Because of Hon. R. B. Bennett's reputation for fair and honest dealing and because of the policies enunciated by him, the Conservative party is assured of the Victoria seat at the polls on July 28, in the opinion of C. H. Dickie, Conservative candidate in Nanaimo riding.

In an address at the Temperance Hall, Keating, last night, Mr. Dickie suggested that Canada had not been given a chance to develop under Liberal rule. He could not see why Canada, with its great resources in mineral deposits, forestry and fisheries, should not be one of the greatest countries in the world, and he put it down to the effect of Liberal administration.

Declaring that the Liberal party deserved no credit for favorable legislation on pension matters, Mr. Dickie described how he would give more relief to returned men who had tried to make good on the land. He would give the land free of interest charges.

PROMISES PROTECTION

The electors of British Columbia should vote for him, because they would be voting for a policy of protection for industries, farming interests and workmen, he said.

The candidate did not believe Liberal speakers were sincere in stating that Conservatives would not do the best thing for the empire. The Conservative party had always been ready to sacrifice for the cause of the empire, he declared.

MORE UNEMPLOYMENT

F. S. Cunliffe, who spoke from the same platform, laid the unemployment situation before the electorate as the greatest issue of the campaign. There was more unemployment in Canada to-day than at any other time.

SAYS KING INCONSISTENT

Conservatives had always had a consistent policy on unemployment. Premier King had not, the speaker said, declaring that the Premier's explanation of his remarks in the House about not giving a "five-cent piece" to the provinces was a change of heart. Mr. Cunliffe rapped the Liberal administration for what he termed the careless way trade treaties had been entered into with other countries.

R. A. Wootton, president of the Victoria Conservative Association, also spoke, exhorting the voters to place Mr. Bennett in power as Premier by overthrowing the King administration.

Happy Valley

The annual meeting of the ratepayers in the Lutton and Happy Valley district was held in the schoolhouse Saturday evening. Trustees and auditors' reports were approved. Nominations for trustees for a three-year period were S. Stuart, Hutchinson and A. L. Page, the former being elected by the chairman's casting vote. Estimates for the year were approved.

Mrs. S. H. Hutchinson and children are visiting Mrs. Hutchinson's sister, Mrs. Forbes O'Brien, of Seattle. Miss Greta Hebdon is attending the Girl Guide camp at Patricia Bay. C. Walker is now residing in Happy Valley.

William Caton, Glen Lake Road, was a recent visitor in Seattle.

Recent guests of Mrs. Robert Brown, Mandalay, included Mrs. Robert Macnichel and children, of Vancouver and Mrs. Patrick and children.

Langford

A novelty tea, under the auspices of St. Matthew's Ladies' Guild, will be held on Friday, July 25. Members and friends are requested to return fancywork to the president, or Dorcas, secretary, as soon as possible.

Miss Hilary May is visiting friends at Newgate, B.C.

Mrs. Percy Moir of Langford Lake and her two sons are staying with friends in Victoria.

Victor Chevall is staying on the Goldstream Road.

OPENS FINE NEW STORE IN CITY

NORMAN G. CULL

Simultaneously with the completion of the new Kresge Building, Norman G. Cull, one of the best known firms of opticians and optometrists in Western Canada, announces the opening of a new store at 1108 Douglas Street. This happens to be the firm's original location, from which they were compelled to move some months ago owing to the old building being torn down.

The new store is exclusively devoted to the optical business. A cosy and comfortable consulting room is provided containing the very latest equipment for the accurate examination of eyes. Mr. Cull has also installed a lens grinding plant and a complete stock of fountain pens, pencils and desk sets.

Victoria and Vancouver Island residents are invited to inspect the new store.

Medical Group's Sessions Show Gains In Health Knowledge

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

The scientific sessions of the American Medical Association held recently brought to light some extremely interesting facts concerning new knowledge in medicine. It was revealed that the product called atropin or cinchophen is sold unrestrictedly under various names and sometimes bought by people without medical advice.

Some of the preparations are toxic and produce serious changes in the liver. The drug is a powerful one and should be used only under medical control.

The problem of heart disease continues to be one of the most important before the medical profession, causing twice as many deaths, as shown by the mortality rates, as the next most frequent cause. Many of the cases are associated with general systemic diseases, such as hardening of the arteries, diabetes, and kidney disease. The chief conditions leading to heart disease are high blood pressure, rheumatic fever, and syphilis.

Certainly the least condition can be adequately treated according to modern knowledge and much may be done for the other two conditions if they are seen early.

HELP FOR EPILEPTICS

An experience of nine years with the use of the ketogenic diet in epilepsy reveals that about thirty per cent. of the patients can be freed from their attacks, twenty per cent. improved by this method, but that the remaining fifty per cent. are not apparently favorably affected.

In the attempt to control high blood pressure by various methods of treatment, the available facts indicate that the use of proper hygiene and the judicious use of suitable drugs will yield favorable results in many cases.

The problems of mental hygiene were discussed in a special symposium and it was revealed that the mental question is tending to become one of the greatest that concerns people from the point of view of health.

The epidemics which occurred in this country during the past year of parrot fever and of trichinosis, caused by a parasite in pork, revealed the manner in which the health of man may be menaced by the diseases of animals, and the importance of coincident study of veterinary problems with medical problems.

The attack on cancer is now being made in many ways, but principally through surgery, through the use of radium and the X-ray. By these methods, improvement has been brought about in a vast number of cases, so that it is now possible to promise clinical cure of forty per cent. of cases seen early, as compared with ten per cent. of cases in which such a promise might be made forty years ago. Clinical cure means that a patient who has been properly treated is living and without complications at least five years after the cancer has been removed.

TWO TREATMENTS FOR ANEMIA

Not only may pernicious anemia be treated by extract of liver but also by extract of the hog's stomach, which stimulates the formation of the red blood cells.

Special emphasis was placed on the fact that human beings must be treated as a whole and not as isolated organs or tissues and that when medicine and surgery work coincidentally they can accomplish many things for the benefit of mankind.

In addition to the points here mentioned, almost 100 papers were read dealing with exceedingly technical conditions in which the public's interest can be only casual.

Colwood

A well-attended meeting of the Colwood ratepayers was held Saturday evening in the Colwood Schoolhouse. W. M. Brown was elected chairman, with Mrs. T. Godfrey as secretary, and J. W. Little as assistant secretary. Capt. F. W. Johnson was elected as trustee for three years, and W. H. Brown as auditor for the year. The Colwood School Board is as follows: Mrs. T. Godfrey (secretary), W. M. Brown and Capt. F. W. Johnson.

Installation of new heating and the need of recreation equipment in the grounds received the support of the ratepayers.

If It's Diet—

"I've eaten beef all my life, and now I'm as strong as an ox!" said he.

"That's funny," replied she. "I've eaten fish all my life and I can't swim a stroke."

CANADIAN VICKERS' GAINS PLACE IT ON SOUND BASIS

Montreal, July 17.—(B.C. Bond)—The Financial Post states, Canadian Vickers Limited position has undergone steady improvement during the past few months, and while it is a little early to make any definite statement in regard to outcome for the full year, results since the beginning of 1929 would indicate that the company has gone a long way toward putting itself on a sound basis.

The greatest improvement has undoubtedly taken place in the industrial department. This was considered one of the weakest units in the company, but since certain reorganization plans were put into effect, increasingly good results have been achieved.

At present this department has about $1,000,000 worth of work ahead of it, or sufficient to maintain operations for a year's time. Two shifts are being worked at present and good progress is being made with contracts in hand.

HAVE GOOD CONTRACTS

It will be recalled that a short time ago the company received an order from International Paper for five Kidwell boilers for installation at the Galtwhain Mill. Since then another contract has been received from Montreal University for two more boilers. These boilers involve a considerable amount of work and run into money, depending upon the size.

Furthermore, the industrial department has several other jobs on hand, especially active, but financial returns in the past few months have been on the right side of the ledger. The company is now devoting all of its energies toward the production of seamless, interest in land planes and engines have been given up or transferred to the recently-formed Aero Engines of Canada. The position of the company in respect to seamless is one of increasing strength and this department will likely develop into a more important revenue producer as the years go by.

MARINE BUSINESS FAIR

Operations in the marine department have been far better than was expected a few months back. At that time, it will be remembered the pessimistic comment upon the lack of business owing to the tie-up of grain in Western Canada. This department is now turning out the last of five barges ordered by the Red Barge Lines. These vessels are specially constructed for service on the St. Lawrence and waterways and have unusual carrying capacity. In addition the company recently had in its dock the 22,000 ton Doric.

The airplane division has not been especially active, but financial returns in the past few months have been on the right side of the ledger. The company is now devoting all of its energies toward the production of seamless, interest in land planes and engines have been given up or transferred to the recently-formed Aero Engines of Canada. The position of the company in respect to seamless is one of increasing strength and this department will likely develop into a more important revenue producer as the years go by.

EARNING POWER WEAK

Three years ago Canadian interests acquired control of the company from the English group. New financing was carried out, bonds, preferred stock and common stock being offered to the public. Financial results in the fiscal year 1928 were satisfactory. In the year ended February 28, 1929, the preferred dividend was just earned, while in the year passed the surplus was wiped out and a deficit of $345,000 marked up.

Early last year steps were taken to bring about an internal reorganization. Changes were made in the executive. Plant operations were carefully gone over; obsolete equipment discarded; new machinery installed. Certain non-productive contracts were cleared up, while the work of the three principal departments was more clearly defined, and numerous economies put into effect.

Who can resist the call of the road in summer? Sweetly the motor sings as we roll along the highway through those enchanted wonderlands of British Columbia, made so accessible by well paved roads. "Wash done in no time and no hard scrubbing" says Mrs. Jean Cushman

"You ought to see how Rinso breaks down our hard water and makes thick, creamy suds. Without a softener, too! I get my wash done in no time now, and so much whiter than the old way. I don't need to do any hard scrubbing! That saves my strength and spares my hands, too. For dishes, too, nothing equals Rinso!"

Rinso soaks out dirt—saves scrubbing. Millions know this way saves the clothes. And clothes come so white they don't need to be boiled.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

A bride's first experience in canning is one of her most thrilling housekeeping adventures. Although in this day of accurate measurements she need have little fear of repeating poor Mrs. Maud's tragedy of "jelly that won't jelly," the first hours she spends alone in her spick and span kitchen "putting up" fruit are not without their moments of anxiety.

When strawberries are in their prime and other fruits and vegetables rapidly coming into season, it is important that a thorough knowledge of safe canning methods be acquired by the inexperienced canner.

Since fruits are much easier to can than vegetables, the following suggestions are for strawberries in particular and all fruits in general. The acid in fruits is a natural preservative, while vegetables with the exception of tomatoes are lacking in this quality and require special handling.

Strawberries are more highly colored than most of the fruits, but the coloring is very delicate and if carelessly handled is lost. The natural vivid red turns a dark reddish brown and the fresh delicious strawberry flavor is gone.

Strawberries contain much air and a large amount of water. Because of this there is an unusual amount of shrinkage if the berry is canned by the old-fashioned "open kettle" or "cold pack" methods.

To prevent shrinkage and to retain the natural color and flavor, the "hot pack" method is advised for all berries. To do this, bring the berries to the simmering point and simmer for five minutes. No water is added for this. The juice of the fruit and the water which clings to the berry after washing is enough to prevent burning. Then cover with a syrup made by boiling three parts of sugar to two parts of water for five minutes. Calculate one cup of sugar to a quart of berries. Let the berries stand in this syrup from eight to twelve hours. Put into sterilized jars, half-seal and process sixteen minutes in pressure cooker and 35 minutes in regulated oven at 275 degrees F.

Remove jars at end of processing period, finish sealing and cool quickly. Store in a dark, cool, dry place. To sterilize jars place them in a dish pan or large kettle. Cover with cold water and bring slowly to the boiling point. Boil fifteen minutes. If Mason jars are used, remove covers and place on edge between cans. The metal of the clamp-top lifts these jars enough to prevent breaking from the intense heat of the bottom of the pan. Add rubbers for the last five minutes of the boiling period and let them remain in boiling water for ten minutes longer. Remove cans as they are needed for filling.

Adjust rubbers before filling and fill jars with syrup and fruit to within about one-half inch of the top of the jar. To half seal a screw-top jar (screw the top down as far as possible with thumb and third finger. To half seal a clamp-top jar lift ball over top but do not put down wire clamp.

BRITISH LORDS OPPOSE WOMEN AS MEMBERS

London, July 17.—A bill to admit women peers in their own right to membership in the House of Lords was defeated by the narrow margin of four votes, 53 to 49, yesterday.

Lord Astor, who has been the women's champion for many years in their fight for recognition in the Upper House, introduced the bill. Conservative peers opposing the bill said the question of the admittance of women should be left until the reform of the whole House was considered, a movement which has been under consideration for some time.

WINNIPEG MAN STATES "SARGON IS MARVELOUS"

Friends Stop Him on Street and Comment on His Wonderful Improvement

"When a man has tried medicine after medicine without getting any relief and at last finds something that brings back his health and makes a well man out of him, it's time for him to talk for the benefit of others—and that's the way I feel about this new Sargon," declared Arthur Barton, well-known resident of 731 Talbot St., Winnipeg.

"People who know me know that I'm not given to making idle statements, but I can honestly say I wouldn't have believed there was a medicine made that could produce such a great change in any human as Sargon has in me!

"My health had been gradually breaking down for the past several years and I'd gotten to the point where I felt tired and worn-out all the time. I didn't even have any desire for food and, due to improper elimination, I suffered from toxic poisoning which no laxative seemed to be able to correct. My nerves became affected. I didn't sleep well and the least little thing seemed to irritate me.

"I tried so many different medicines without getting any better, I'd just about come to the conclusion they were all 'jokes' when someone suggested this new Sargon. The way it brought back my health and strength was nothing short of marvelous. I had a number of people stop me on the street and comment on how much better I'm looking, and if I look as hale and hearty as I feel, it's no wonder everybody notices it. My appetite couldn't be any better; my nerves are as good as any man's and as I told a friend of mine the other day, I sleep like a top for eight or ten hours every night.

"I consider the Sargon Soft Mass Pills a valuable part of the treatment for ridding the system of toxic poisons and keeping the bowels well regulated. They act just like nature itself and I hardly knew I'd even taken them. After all these two great medicines have done for me, I'm only too glad to give them both my heartiest recommendation.

Sargon may be obtained in Victoria and Vancouver from all Owl Drug Stores and in New Westminster from the Bews Drug Co. (Adv.)

SPECIAL FORMS FOR ADJUSTMENT OF INCOME TAX

Explain Refunds For Charitable Donations and Allowances to Dependents

Early Application Advised By Vancouver Inspector; Effect of Budget

Individuals entitled to income tax refunds and adjustments on donations to charitable organizations or on account of dependents, resulting from changes that came with the Budget, may secure special forms for their claims from the Inspector of Income Tax, Winch Building, 739 Hastings Street West, Vancouver. The Department of National Revenue is anxious that such claims should be filed without delay.

A statement issued yesterday by Norman Lee, Inspector of Income Tax for Vancouver, said:

"On April 30 last all persons liable to payment of income tax were obliged to file returns and make either complete or partial payments based on the law as it then existed. The following day (May 1), the Minister of Finance introduced in his budget speech several amendments to the act and the relative bills were discussed, amended and passed by the Parliament of Canada and finally given royal assent on May 30 last (20-21 George V. Chap. 21).

"The principal items in which the general public is interested come under two heads:

"First, an allowance for deduction from income of donations made to charitable organizations, to the extent of ten per cent of the net taxable income.

"Second, an additional exemption allowed in certain cases for the maintenance of other than the dependent children of the taxpayer.

NEW MACHINERY

"The carrying into effect of these amendments will involve the examination of many thousands of applications for relief and new machinery is being set up for the accomplishment of this purpose. Special forms have been provided by the department and a supply of these is in the possession of each inspector's office, where they may be had on application by any person interested. These forms are known as Form T.1. Donations and Form T.1.E. Rev., the latter covering claims for dependent persons.

"The definitions of a charitable organization covers: (a) trusts or organizations for the relief of poverty; (b) trusts or organizations for the advancement of education; (c) trusts or organizations for the advancement of religion; (d) trusts or organizations for other purposes beneficial to the community not falling under any of the preceding heads, and in all cases the organizations must be operated exclusively for a charitable purpose and no part of the income must inure to the benefit of any private person, member or shareholder thereof.

"All contributions must have been paid within the year for which the return is made and no contribution returned to 1929 can be considered. Proof of payment must accompany the filing of the forms and must show the amount of the gift. The character of the recipient organizations and the year in which donations was paid. Donations payable over a term of years can only be claimed as and when the obligation of the donor has been carried out.

"Another important amendment to the act makes an allowance of five hundred dollars ($500) for each parent, grandparent, brother or sister incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity, who is dependent upon the taxpayer for maintenance.

"It is the earnest desire of the Department of National Revenue that all persons who may be entitled to relief under the amendments will promptly communicate with the inspector's office in their respective districts, secure and file the forms without delay."

Scarcely had preparations been begun for the attempt of Squadron Leader C. S. Wynne-Eyton, British flyer, to hop from Newfoundland to England than his plane was demolished when it crashed during a trial flight. Above is shown the small De Havilland Puss Moth when it was assembled at Lester Field, St. John's. Major Wynne-Eyton, who was bruised and severely burned when the ship fell and burst into flames, is shown at the left in the cockpit of his plane.

LIBERALS SCORED ON UNEMPLOYMENT BY D. B. PLUNKETT

Conservative Candidate Outlines Conservative Assistance When in Power

Says He Is Not Responsible For Provincial Minimum Wage Act

Upholding the attempts of the Conservatives to solve the problems of unemployment in Canada and scoring the King Government on what he termed its failure to cope with the matter, D. B. Plunkett, Conservative candidate for Victoria, in the Federal election, addressed a gathering at North Ward School yesterday evening. Reginald Hayward, M.P., and F. C. Elliott, spoke on behalf of the candidate.

Showing the Conservative sympathies for labor, Mr. Plunkett claimed his party had been the first to give unions a legal status, had backed technical education and during its term in office, had made large grants to aid agriculture.

He stated that the Conservatives had voted $1,000,000 to assist agriculturalists during their regime, and had established a fund of $25,000,000 to provide moderately-priced homes for working men.

Mr. Plunkett also claimed for his party the distinction of having inaugurated unemployment bureaus and of being the first to include a labor man in a Federal Cabinet.

Shorter hours and higher pay had been the policy of the Conservatives while they were in office, the speaker stated. Two years ago his party had made a Dominion Government grant of $1,000,000 to alleviate distress caused by the crisis at that time, he added.

Mr. Plunkett scored Mr. King on the grounds that he was unconcerned with unemployment. Legislation might have been deferred had the Conservatives not been impotent in opposition last session, he implied.

NOT RESPONSIBLE

Outspoken denial was given by Mr. Plunkett regarding the rumor to the effect that he had been responsible for the Minimum Wage Act in British Columbia.

The matter had been introduced by Major Burde, hoisted in an amended form by the late William Sloan, and reintroduced by C. F. Davis, member for Cowichan-Neverside in the B.C. House, he said.

Taxit revision was urged in the address of P. G. Elliott.

Reginald Hayward alleged the Liberals were vacillating in their policy. After ignoring the tariff and stating a wall would be built to Canada, they were coming out with a promise of countervailing duties, he said.

THE pure vegetable oils in Palmolive Soap are Nature's most effective safeguard for the lovely texture of the skin.

"When not enough soap and water is used," says Marguerite Hoare, "one risks oiliness, blackheads and similar disfigurements. When the wrong soap is used, one suffers roughness and irritation."

"My solution," continues Marguerite Hoare, "to the problem of cleansing without irritation is—Palmolive Soap. Its safe lather has wonderful cleansing properties, carrying all impurities from the pores."

Beauty adviser to Mayfair society

London society frequents the beauty salons of Marguerite Hoare for the benefit of her advice and treatments, all of which include the use of Palmolive Soap. Her reputation has secured for her a clientele that includes many of the most famous names in England.

Beware of irritation

The wrong kind of soap, however, can do great harm to the skin—can cause irritation and roughness. That is why 23,720 beauty specialists recommend Palmolive Soap—whose palm and olive oil content cleanses the skin so gently and safely.

Here is the treatment advised by Marguerite Hoare, and so many of the beauty specialists in Europe and America: Massage a creamy lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water gently into the pores; rinse first with warm water, then with cold. Do this night and morning.

To this simple home treatment they ascribe much of their success in complexion care. No other soap, they explain, will bring the same results.

Follow Marguerite Hoare's advice. Begin to use Palmolive right away. It costs so little that you can use it for your bath as well.

HIGH PRESSURE SELLING BLAMED FOR DEPRESSION

Co-operative Congress Hears of Profit Debate in United States

Canadian Wheat Pool Praised as Panacea For Farmers' Misfortunes

Toronto, July 17 (By the Canadian Press).—The American co-operative movement is facing difficulties unknown in the British Isles and Canada. Dr. J. P. Warbasse said at the co-operative convention here, bringing greetings to the congress of the Co-operative Union of Canada from the American Co-operative League.

He described economic conditions in the United States as a chaos of insolvent payments and high pressure salesmanship. The profit motive completely dominates the thinking of the American people, he declared, and this has caused the depression which is now affecting the whole country.

Dr. Warbasse asserted that the co-operative movement is classed with communists and anarchists in the United States, and will shortly be investigated by Congress as "subversive to business." This, he attributed to the fact that production for profit is preached in all the newspapers, schools and universities of that country. He felt, however, that co-operation is beginning to be understood, as he is constantly invited to lecture on the subject in leading universities.

Representing the Co-operative Wholesale Society of England, an organization with an annual turnover of $400,000,000, Sir William Dudley announced its intention of joining the Canadian Union, following the example set some time ago by the Scottish Co-operative Society. He explained that this would be a powerful factor in promoting Empire trade, since his society includes more than five million members, and feeds 20,000,000 mouths in the British Isles.

Sir William had high praise for Canadian enterprises, and said that "Canada has given the world its characteristic contribution to our new co-operative civilization—the wheat pool," he said.

"It was a masterly conception," he declared. "It gave new hope to the man who, by ceaseless toil and care the year round, brings forth supplies for man's needs, but who hitherto have been robbed of their just reward by speculators who, in the comfort of a city office, made fortunes over the telephone."

AUTO INSURANCE BODY IS MOOTED

Fire Men Would Have Automobile Agents Form Association at Annual Meeting

Formation of an association of automobile insurance agents will be attempted by the Victoria District Fire Insurance Agents' Association at its annual meeting in the board room of the Belmont House on Wednesday, July 23, at 2:30 o'clock. It was announced in the notice of meeting today.

It is expected that the new association will be formed and will later merge with the fire group to enlarge the body.

During the meeting annual reports from the president and secretary will be received. A president, vice-president, five members of the executive committee and a secretary and treasurer will be elected from the floor of the meeting.

Members are reminded that no member shall be eligible for election to the presidency or vice-presidency unless he has served at least one term on the executive committee.

Any other business connected with fire insurance will also be taken up at the meeting.

On Friday, July 25, the association will hold its annual golf tournament and dinner at the Colwood Golf and Country Club.

The R. S. Day & Son Challenge Cup will again be up for competition. Those intending to take part in the contest are advised to register with J. L. Mara or P. B. J. Stephenson.

Dinner will be served at the clubhouse at 7 o'clock in the evening, while the golf tournament will commence at 2 o'clock.

CAN SHE FLY 200 MILES AN HOUR?

Will she be the next speed queen of the air? Experts say she has an excellent chance to break the world's record for women now held by Amelia Earhart, and Florence Lowe Barnes, famous Los Angeles aviatrix, plans to have a try at it, using her new "mystery monoplane" which has a speed rating of 200 miles an hour. Mrs. Earhart's record, set on the same measured course which Mrs. Barnes will fly, is 184.5 an hour.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a sister and a mother who have different plans of life and I would like your opinion of which one to imitate. My sister is a good housekeeper, good cook, sews, drives a car, plays bridge, is a good dancer, reads a lot, goes to movies and to lectures. Her house is a home, not a jail.

Mother is a slave to her house. Scrubs her kitchen every day whether it needs it or not, never has time to read or go anywhere or take a ride. Sister keeps herself immaculate, wears rubber gloves to save her hands. Mother says it is silly for a married woman to bother about her looks or her hands. Go to sister's house in the evening and you find them sitting comfortably in the living-room reading or listening to the radio or talking, everything so peaceful and pleasant. But if you sit down to read in mother's home she thinks it is a waste of time, and we should be dusting or scrubbing or doing some sort of work, and she makes you so nervous that you cannot rest in quiet.

After seven years of marriage my brother-in-law adores my sister and loves to stay at home, but while we love our mother all of us like to get away from her.

Now I am going to be married. Shall I follow my mother or my sister's example in making a home?

MARION.

ANSWER:
Follow your sister's. She belongs to the new school of housekeepers who use their heads as well as their hands in solving the domestic problem, while your mother belongs to the old school that believes that there is some peculiar virtue in making drudgery of housework.

These are those who mournfully quote the old poem about man working from sun to sun but woman's work being never done. Well, all I can say is, that if a woman's work is never done in the house in these days of gas ranges and vacuum cleaners and electrical appliances and fireless cookers and so on, it is because she is lacking in intelligence and is a darn poor manager. Any woman who is lacking in fair intelligence who knows how to plan her work and who has enough sense to get her work done in the most proper and efficient way, will behave themselves and go to sleep when they should be running the house properly and have plenty of time to rest and relax and amuse herself.

It is this old-fashioned idea that housework is never-ending and that a woman has to be eternally scrubbing and cooking and sweeping that makes so many women have a horror of housework and dread giving up their jobs as stenographers or saleswomen or bookkeepers to go into the kitchen.

But, as a matter of fact, if they bring any intelligence to bear on their work they find that when they are working in their own homes the work is not so exacting nor so important as when they are working in the office. Furthermore, there are plenty of times when they can take a nap or drop into a mattress or run off for an early-morning bargain sale. They could not have done when they had to stand behind a counter or pound a typewriter all day.

Gone, also, is the idea that in order to be a good housekeeper a woman not only had to sacrifice herself, but everybody else to some fantastical ideal of cleanliness. All of us have been in homes in which the best rooms were never used. The kitchen kept empty and garished for guests who never came or who were so uncomfortable in them that they never stayed if they did come. All of us have been in homes where there were parlors that were never opened except for funerals and weddings and that were as cold and forbidding as tombs.

We have also been in homes where to move a chair from its appointed place was a misdemeanor, where to open a window was a high crime, and where to have lain down upon a couch would have been a sacrilege and where the mistress of the house looked so worn and weary that one was filled with self-reproach for having added to her burden by giving her one more to clean up after.

But the new-fashioned housekeeper lets her house keep her instead of her keeping it. She keeps it clean and orderly, but within reason. Everything is for use and comfort, not show. Gone is the sepulchral parlor and in its place a cheerful living-room where all may do as they please and enjoy their home instead of making of it a place of torture.

I don't know of any modern improvement that is a greater improvement than the modern home.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am very much in love with a very fine man. He is thirty-three. I am nearly thirty. We were to have been married, but he has suddenly decided that he isn't sure whether he cares enough for me to marry me. He says that while I think I am a very good person, I am not wise and that until he feels that he cannot possibly go on living with me he does not want to marry. If I am willing to continue seeing him without understanding, well and good, but if there is anyone else who is interested in me, as much as it would pain him not to see me any more, perhaps I had better not waste any opportunities.

Of course I have my pride and I am trying to decide whether I should continue the friendship on his terms in hopes that he will come to realize he loved me sufficiently to marry me or whether I should stop loving him entirely. Which do you say?

MIRIAM

ANSWER:

I think that if your man is waiting to have all the chills and fevers and other hectic symptoms of love, as set forth by novels and the movies, he will never marry at all. No woman will sweep him off his feet. He will never be caught up in any whirlwind of passion, because nature didn't endow him with that sort of a temperament.

He is cold and cautious. He always looks before he leaps and considers the danger and where he is likely to land. That type of man never even deludes himself with the idea that love is the only thing in existence and that he couldn't live without some particular woman. He knows that the world is full of a number of things, such as business and careers and the stock market and automobiles and golf that enable men to be as happy as kings even if they are bachelors.

If a man is ever going to thrill very much he does it before he is thirty-three. Also, he sets out before that age on a quest for a dream maiden if he believes in fairy tales. The rhapsodies of calf love are not for the mature, nor can the eyes of sophistication ever see a woman as the glamorous eyes of a boy see her. So your hachpior's search for the impossible "she," who will give him heart failure and fill him with rapture is hopeless. He will never find her.

Perhaps in a little while he will find that out himself and realize that the calm and satisfying love he has for you is the best and most enduring love of all, but I think you will best help him to make this discovery by breaking off your association with him. Let him miss you and find out how empty life can be without you.

As long as he can have your companionship without marrying you he will take it, because what is really the matter with him is that he is a love coward. He has got cold feet at the thought of giving up his bachelorhood.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am married to a woman considerably older than I am, whom I love very much and I am very happy with her. My family were very much opposed to our marrying on account of the difference in age and they are still trying to break up the marriage. They tell me I can get a divorce on the ground of my wife having refrained from telling me her true age. I don't want a divorce. I am perfectly satisfied and happy and would be all right if any people would let us alone. What shall I do?

ANXIOUS HUSBAND.

ANSWER:
Brace up and have enough manhood to protect your wife and stand by your marriage vows. Tell your meddling family to mind their own business and keep their hands off yours. It is iniquitous for them to try to break up your home and turn you into a yellow quitter without the grit to stand by your own act.

The annual meeting of Powder Island school district was held on Saturday evening, R. St. W. Corbett being elected chairman. The financial report by the treasurer, E. W. Johnston, showed a balance on hand of $640.50. Auditor, E. Hootson, stated the accounts were in order, and the school loan reduced yearly. The estimates showed a decrease of $19, a raise in the teachers' salaries. The services of Miss Locke and Miss Dickinson were highly commended and it was unanimously agreed that some advance in salary was theirs. Repairs, improvements and painting the exterior of the school brought the estimates up to a total of $1,363.

POLLY MORAN AND MARIE DRESSLER IN DOMINION FEATURE

At the Dominion Theatre to-day,
Marie Dressler and Polly Moran again demonstrate that they are supreme in their field, as the only feminine comedy team, and that they need take second place to no one.

"Caught Short," their current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking comedy directed by Chuck Reizner, is an exceedingly deft and very laughable picture based on the late lamented stock market crash in Wall Street.

Willard Mack, the author, has drawn a very natural picture of two boarding house keepers of Washington Square,
New York, who are pulled into the imbroglio of Wall Street. And of course, when too much prosperity splits the old friends, it also raises hob with the budding romance of Marie's daughter, Anita Page, an Polly's son, Charles Morton. Incidentally, these two make an exceedingly attractive pair. It is the first time they have appeared together.
"Caught Short" being Morton's first M-G-M picture. For several years he has been featured in Fox productions.

UNDERWORLD STORY
OF NEW YORK PLAYS WITH LOIS WILSON

A thoroughly enjoyable film of New York's underworld opened at the Playhouse Theatre this evening. It is "Temptation," a Columbia all-talking production, with Lois Wilson and Lawrence Gray in the leading roles.

Julie Becker, an intelligent, hard-working girl, is determined that life shall not cheat her of the material comforts. Sam Gordon, a thrifty, prosperous German, offers her marriage. It seems to be the solution of her problems. Shortly before the day appointed for her marriage to Gordon, Julie meets Larry Donovan, recently released from prison. He appeals to her sympathy. She falls in love with him.
She asks Gordon to release her from her engagement and links her life with Donovan's just in time to prevent him from returning to crime.

ENGLISH PICTURE
AT THE COLUMBIA
WITH CLEVER CAST

The ancient village of Elstree, near London, is fast becoming the Hollywood of Europe. According to late reports, motion picture and dramatic talent from all over the Continent is migrating rapidly to that centre. For with the introduction of talking pictures in England, and with a potential market for this product in America, signers, technicians, directors, camera men, authors, scenarists, etc.

"Blackmail," now showing at the Columbia Theatre, is the first one hundred per cent talking motion picture produced in England. It was widely acclaimed by the English press,
and is a result of this exodus of production talent from all over Europe to London. Because of its merits as entertainment, this production was immediately acquired for U.S. consumption by the Sono Art-World Wide Pictures Inc., sponsors of Eddie Dowling's "Rainbow Man," and James Cruise's "The Great Gatsby."

THE COLISEUM IN
"WELCOME DANGER"

Harold Lloyd has long been known as the "family comedian" because his humor and situations are so clear that the entire family can understand and laugh at them. His latest picture, "Welcome Danger," in which he returns to the screen after an absence of over a year and a half is no exception.

In "Welcome Danger" Harold is a young botanist whose chief aim in life is to perfect a new species of the wild cactus, and he pursues his hopes with a vim. Then presto, fate takes a hand in things and sends him from dear old Boston to San Francisco to clean up a long war and raid the underground Chinatown.

"Welcome Danger" is a feature picture at the Coliseum Theatre to-day.

GRIPPING DRAMA OF GANG WARFARE NOW SHOWING AT CAPITOL

Heralded as one of the most powerful dramas since the advent of talking pictures, "Framed," Radio Pictures starring production, will be seen for the first time at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

Based on a most intriguing story,
played by an unusually competent cast
and produced in notable manner,
"Framed" is expected to prove an outstanding hit during its run at the local theatre. The drama has been exceptionally well received wherever shown.

"Framed" is a gripping story of gang warfare in a large metropolitan centre.
It is said the drama is entirely different than any previous picture of its type. Adapted from Paul Schofield's thrilling story, the film has a number of novel plot twists.

Evelyn Brent, fascinating heroine of a number of talking picture successes, and Regis Toomey, likewise young player, portray the leading roles. Miss Brent numbers among her successes such outstanding films as "Underworld," "Interference," "Fast Company" and "Slightly Scared." Toomey, originally from the Broadway legitimate stage, achieved motion picture fame by his unforgettable portrayal in "Alibi" and recently added to his laurels with fine work in "Street of Chance."

WARWICK DEEPING
NOVEL WILL PLAY
AT THE PLAYHOUSE

There is a thrilling kidnapping in the beautiful love story, "KITTY," the popular novel of Warwick Deeping, from which the imported World Wide talking picture has been made, and which will be shown at the Playhouse
Theatre next week.

Kitty, a little shop girl, who has been married to a young English officer of aristocratic lineage, during the war, is refused admission to the boy's home by the mother, who is keeping her injured son practically a prisoner in the house. She intercepts all letters so that the two never hear from each other.

MCLEOD PLAYERS WOULD BENEFIT
VICTORIA, CLAIM

Presence of First Class Company Would Aid City Financially and Culturally

Considerable Support Already Enlisted For Return of Popular Artists

The advantages of having a permanent stock company in the city
during the coming winter season are becoming more and more apparent to the citizens of Victoria, according to the committee, in charge of the movement for the return of the Gordon McLeod Players. Considerable support has been enlisted from various public-spirited citizens, but the fund is still far from its objective, and the committee wishes to remind the general public that subscriptions must be in by August 1, so that Mr. McLeod may have the necessary time to collect his artists in California and arrange for the plays to be shown here.

Local theatregoers will no doubt remember the pleasure they received from the Players here last winter. A twenty-week engagement next fall would do much to improve the entertainment facilities of the city, both for the tourist and for the residents of Victoria. If the McLeod Company is not able to appear at the Royal Victoria this season it is unlikely that Victorians will see much legitimate acting, due to the present depression in the road show business.

Other cities, notably Vancouver, have found that assistance given to a permanent stock company has proved to be a most profitable investment. A resident company spends its entire pay roll in the city, and in addition gives work to many local citizens. From the educational standpoint there is nothing superior in fostering a better knowledge of the English language and the English stage. The McLeod Players will produce only the finest form of English drama, and Mr. McLeod will be able to secure some first class material in Los Angeles from among the English actors who have been drawn there by the movies.

It is pointed out by the committee that a subscription can really be considered as a small additional cost in the price of each ticket during the season. With the low scale of prices charged by the Players it would well repay every regular theatregoer to contribute. Each dollar helps to secure the appearance here of first class English drama at popular prices, the committee says.

Citizens are reminded that subscription list are now open at all Victoria banks and in the offices The Times and The Colonist.

YOUR CHILDREN

More than one mother has worried herself sick over the fact that her baby wants to sleep all the time. I remember myself of asking the doctor if my first baby was "all right," feeling sure that he was in a quiet place. Winkles must have brain trouble or something.
And by the way, too many mothers are worried about that "brain trouble."

If a baby does not wake up early as the neighbor's baby, or talk, or show off, or cut his teeth, the first thing that pops into his mother's head is "brain trouble." There are so few cases of real brain trouble among babies that I hasten to reassure those thousands of mothers who are worrying. Just wait and you will be surprised. Baby may take his own time, but he'll get there and perhaps leave all the early birds behind.

A new baby sleeps most of the time,
about twenty-two hours out of twenty-four if he is comfortable. Some sleep less but the average is probably well over 20 hours.

At two months he will sleep about eighteen or twenty hours a day.
When he is six months old his waking periods, of course, are longer, and a system of sleeping hours should be by this time be well under way. Now he should sleep twelve hours at a stretch at night without waking, if he is well, except for one evening feeding.
